

Judge Decides To Commit Carr For Trial

Privy Council May Soon Rule On Margarine

OTTAWA (CP)—The Canadian Federation of Agriculture and its affiliate, the Dairy Farmers of Canada, have applied jointly for leave to appeal the margarine question to the Judicial Committee of the Privy Council in London.

The decision was announced today by H. H. Hannam, president of the C.F.A.

The Supreme Court of Canada ruled last December that legislation banning the manufacture, sale or possession of margarine and other substitutes was illegal. The court upheld the bar against importation.

Mr. Hannam said it had been "a matter of regret" to the federation that an appeal had not been taken by the federal government.

"Having waited two months in the hope that an appeal would be made, the federation has decided to launch such an appeal," he said.

SEES MUCH CONFUSION
The legislation governing margarine had been submitted to the Supreme Court for purposes of clarification.

"Instead of achieving a clarification of the matter, the Supreme Court decision seems to have succeeded only in creating much confusion in respect to it."

(The government gave notice recently in the Speech from the Throne that it would introduce legislation at this session of Parliament aimed at abolishing appeals to the Privy Council. However, it is believed unlikely the legislation would be brought down before the C.F.A. matter had been dealt with.)

Aside from the fact that legalized sale of margarine, decided by the Supreme Court, was unfavorable from the viewpoint of the dairy farmers, the federation attacked it on other grounds.

REASONS DIVERGED

In a statement distributed at a press conference, Mr. Hannam said the decision divides authority over margarine as between the federal and provincial governments; all the five judges giving the majority report "differed with each other as to reason; the judgment leaves a serious element of uncertainty as to the status of other farm legislation."

A unanimous Privy Council decision would remove all uncertainty Mr. Hannam said.

Call On Church To Champion Needs Of Elderly People

TORONTO (CP)—The United Church of Canada was called on today to help meet the needs of elderly people.

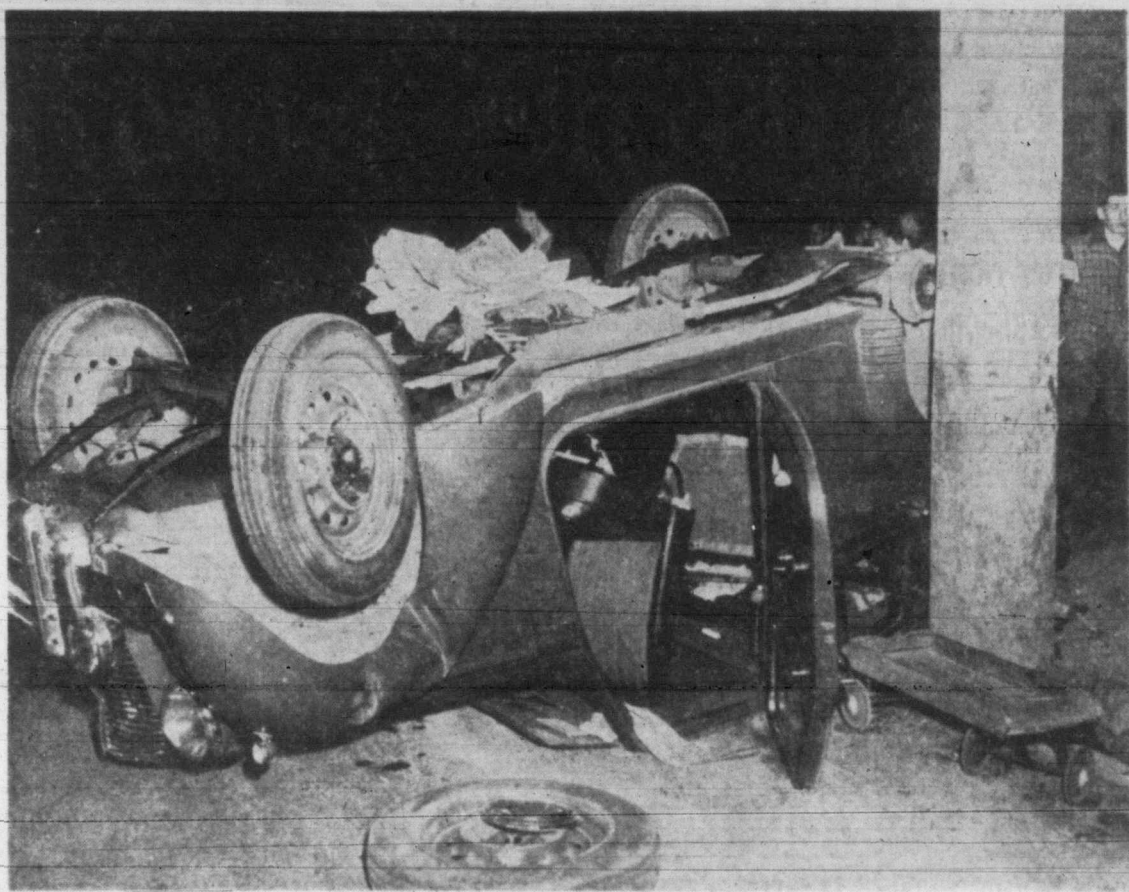

The call came from Rev. R. C. Chalmers, D.D., associate secretary of the church's board of evangelism and social service, who said in his annual report that the church must bring its influence to bear on civic and government agencies to make more provision than in the past for accommodation for citizens of advanced years.

Said Dr. Chalmers: "There are many factors which make this problem of accommodating the aged very acute: housing shortage, smaller houses, high cost of living, high rates of unemployment and indifference on the part of children, insufficient remuneration in the case of old-age pensioners and other factors."

"Many aged who are looking for a room have no relatives living."

Car Plates Stolen

VANCOUVER (CP)—Someone in Vancouver has two shiny new sets of automobile license plates. But they'll have to dodge police if they attempt to use them on automobiles. The plates were stolen from under the noses of clerks at the motor license bureau.

Scene Of Second 1949 Fatal Accident

While the two occupants of this battered 1948 model English car crawled out unhurt, four-year-old James William Lazaruk, 1729 Oak Bay Avenue, was instantly killed when crushed against the telephone pole by the spinning, upside-down vehicle at 6 Monday evening east of the intersection of Oak Bay Avenue and Richmond Road. Driver was Harry E. White, 2377 Central Avenue, and his passenger was Robert H. Blades, 2367 Central. (See story, page 3)

Churchmen Accuse Each Other At Trial In Budapest

SOFIA (CP)—The last of the 15 Protestant churchmen on trial for treason went to the stand today and tearfully confessed.

The state then began the calling of witnesses. The clergymen are accused of spying and black-market dealings and treason.

Only one of the 15 deviated from a full confession. Ladin Popov, 36, a Pentecostal pastor, denied he had been a spy, but said in a quaking voice that he was guilty of illegal currency dealings.

Mitko Dimitrov, a Baptist pastor, accused one of the leading defendants, Nikola Naumov, supervisor of the Baptist Church in Bulgaria, of saying from the pulpit that "Stalin is a blood-sucker."

SEPTUAGENARIAN SPEAKS

Alexander Zahariev, 73, a Methodist, was the last and oldest of those on trial. He accused his son-in-law, Yanko Ivanov, the Methodist supervisor, of duping him into collecting spy data. The old man said he didn't know the information was wanted by foreign interests, as the Communist state alleges.

All defendants have followed the routine of making long confessions, pledging full repentance and begging a chance to redeem themselves by working for the government.

City To Reject School Estimates

It is not expected the City Council will accept this year's estimated requirements of the Greater Victoria School Board. The council's finance committee is recommending that the estimates be returned for downward revision.

"They are beyond the ability of the city to pay," a member of the committee stated.

Skier Has Accident

VANCOUVER (CP)—Korey Hegseth of Wells, B.C., is in hospital here with a fractured hip. Injured in a skiing accident, he was flown to hospital from Wells, 290 air miles north of here.

Premier Bars Tabling Of Drew's 1942 Letter

OTTAWA (CP)—George Drew, Progressive Conservative leader, attempted to table in the Commons this afternoon his controversial letter on the Hongkong expedition, but was blocked by the opposition of the government.

Prime Minister St. Laurent refused to give the necessary consent for the tabling of the letter, written July 11, 1942, to the then Prime Minister King in criticism of the handling of the Hongkong expedition and the findings of the royal commission inquiring into it.

While today's clash between the two leaders lacked some of the fireworks of Monday's hot battle that precipitated Mr. Drew's attempt to bring in the letter, it did draw from the Progressive Conservative leader the charge that the Prime Minister's given reasons for opposing the tabling of the letter were "entirely remote from the facts."

Mr. St. Laurent had given as his explanation for the renewed objection the statement that publication of the 32-page 10,000-word letter would involve disclosure of certain confidential communications from the United Kingdom government, whose release had not yet been authorized by the U.K.

These documents, as indicated in earlier House debates on the Drew letter, had to do with British information on the prospects of war in the Far East at the time the Hongkong expedition set out from Canada in the fall of 1941.

(See earlier story "St. Laurent, Drew Stage," page 3)

France Wants Other Nations To Aid In Routing Spies

PARIS (Reuter)—France may ask the other Western Union powers—Britain, Belgium, the Netherlands and Luxembourg—and Italy to co-operate in the drive against military espionage now being conducted in France, reliable sources stated here today.

No further details were available immediately.

The report came as French police continued active in their check-up on alleged Communist spies. Three more persons, it was learned today, have been detained for questioning.

Uncover Plot To Kidnap Li, Overthrow Chinese Regime

SHANGHAI (AP)—Shen Pao, Shanghai's second largest newspaper, reported today that a plot to kidnap Acting-President Li Tsung-jen and overthrow the Chinese Nationalist government was averted by wholesale arrests. The newspaper said the plot involved underground workers of Marshal Li Chien-shan's Kuomintang (government party) revolutionary committee and Communist agents.

It was to have been staged two weeks ago, said the newspaper.

A Nanking dispatch to Shen Pao Feb. 18 first hinted of the plot. It said Men Shih-heng, representative of Li Chien-shan of the revolutionary committee, had been detained by secret police. Shen Pao said Men Shih-heng was a member of a "five-man action group" in charge of execution of the plot.

Igor Gouzenko Testifies On Fake Passport

OTTAWA (CP)—Deputy Magistrate Joachim Sauve said today he will commit Sam Carr for trial on a charge of conspiracy to utter a forged passport for a Russian agent.

He came to this decision after hearing six Crown witnesses in a three-hour preliminary inquiry which had started earlier today.

At the inquiry Igor Gouzenko, more heavily-guarded than ever, testified that Carr had asked $5,000 in 1945 to get a faked passport for a Russian agent in the United States and that intelligence headquarters in Moscow wired back that the sum was "fantastic."

In the end, the former cipher clerk at the Soviet embassy told the magistrate $3,000 was agreed upon as the fee for paying off someone inside Canada's passport office to work the complicated machinery of renewing a passport for the wrong man.

As Gouzenko gave evidence, Magistrate Sauve ordered that no one in court was to make any sketch or picture of the former Russian cipher clerk or publish his description.

Gouzenko has been in concealment and under R.C.M.P. guard since he first disclosed existence of Red spy rings in 1945.

Today, he was under the protection of a dozen R.C.M.P. members as he came to court.

Counsel Protests Sketching

Complaint about a person in court sketching Gouzenko was made by Crown counsel John Cartwright.

"It is most undesirable," he said, asking the judge for the ban.

Wearing a blue suit, white shirt and red tie, Carr stood in the dock alone, as the long charge was read.

Joseph Sedgwick, defence counsel, immediately opened a tactical battle with Crown counsel John Cartwright.

While Carr remained silent, Sedgwick engaged in a debate over whether he should have to plead guilty or innocent and elect trial at this stage.

"My impression is that he has elected now, though I may be wrong," the magistrate said.

Finally, the magistrate decided to go along with the proceedings in the form of a preliminary hearing, with Carr still not having spoken.

The alleged spy figure watched the proceedings impassively. He was unsmiling. Occasionally, he glanced around the room. He listened closely as Gouzenko gave his testimony.

Plan For Germans To Build Tonnage Meets Opposition

WASHINGTON (AP)—United States government agencies were reported at odds today over a proposal from Gen. Lucius D. Clay to let the western Germans build and operate ocean-going ships.

It is a major policy issue which involves Britain and France and the cold war with Soviet Russia.

Officials said American viewpoints are so conflicting that the decision almost certainly will be put up to President Truman, one of the signers of the 1945 Potsdam agreement which prohibits the building by Germany of "all types" of sea-going vessels.

Representatives of U.S. ship operators and maritime unions have filed sharp protests with the State Department against any revival of Germany as a world shipping rival.

Missing Man's Body Found In Harbor

The body of Capt. O. Scarf, 35, missing since Jan. 23, was recovered in the Inner Harbor this morning. Capt. Scarf was well-known here as a veteran of sealing days.

J. H. Byron, 1115 Collinson Street, and P. G. Moody, found the body.

The body was identified by Alan Hawthornthwaite, husband of the adopted daughter of the dead man. Constables Robert Blair and Rodney McNeill attended.

New Board Chairman

OTTAWA (CP)—John C. Murray has been named chairman of the Canadian Farm Loan Board, Finance Minister Abbott made the announcement.

To Seek Manager For Civic Arena

Applications are to be called for a manager for the Memorial Arena, it was learned today following the inaugural meeting of the new Arena Commission when F. N. Cabellu was named chairman.

Plans for operating the civic rink will not be completed until a manager has been chosen. The commission will advertise also for applications for the position of secretary to the governing board.

Richard C. Field, chartered accountant who was appointed to the commission a few weeks ago, was named vice-chairman at the meeting. Other members are D. N. W. Grubb, Stanley Moore and William Bridgewood.

Mercy Doctors Face 20-Mile Dog-Team Trip In Sub-Arctic

WINNIPEG (CP)—A 20-mile trip by dog team may be in store for five doctors who left here today aboard a ski-equipped R.C.A.F. Dakota on a 1,000-mile flight to plague-ridden Chesterfield Inlet on the western coast of ice-bound Hudson Bay.

The mercy flight was authorized by Ottawa following reports that a strange epidemic was sweeping the sub-Arctic region centred around the Inlet 350 miles north of Churchill, Man. Eleven Eskimos are reported to have died and an undisclosed number otherwise affected by the undiagnosed malady.

Rough ice conditions near the Inlet may force the silver-winged aircraft to make a landing approximately 20 miles from the outpost, R.C.A.F. spokesmen said, with the doctors proceeding by dog team to the small settlement of 30 whites and Eskimos.

If possible, however, the plane will attempt a landing on a 4,000-foot-long strip on the frozen bay near the post, marked by coat bags or oil drums.

Five Withdraw Confessions At Trial In Hungary

BUDAPEST, Hungary (AP)—Five of the 14 men on trial charged with black-market dealings for Joseph Cardinal Mindszenty withdrew today their pre-trial confessions. They charged instead that police had "intimidated" them.

A sixth defendant also withdrew part of his confession.

The men were accused of illegal dealings in foreign currency and of "political conspiracy" with the cardinal and others already sentenced.

Cardinal Mindszenty was sentenced to life imprisonment 21 days ago on charges of treason, seeking to overthrow the Communist-controlled government in favor of the Hapsburg monarchy and with illegal speculation in U.S. dollars.

The original confessions were made during the usual questioning by police after the arrests. Zsigmond Deutsch, a broker, started the chain of withdrawals of the confessions.

Work Stoppage Hits Service Stations

SAN FRANCISCO (AP)—All Union Oil Company facilities in California, Washington and Oregon—including service stations—will be struck tomorrow by the A.F.L. Building Service Employees' Union, George Hardy, union international vice-president, announced today.

Hardy said the union's complaint against the oil company arose from the firing of 38 elevator operators and janitors at the company's Los Angeles headquarters. The union insisted the men be rehired.

LEGISLATIVE LOBBIES

MY REMARKS ABOUT spring fever in yesterday's column might almost have been extended to include Legislative lobbies. For, at this season of the year, along with the flowers that bloom in the spring, tra-la, lobbyists spring up overnight.

They come to bring us their views on a variety of subjects, from "shoes and ships and sealing wax, to cabbages and kings," as the Walrus in Alice in Wonderland puts it.

So far we haven't been pressed much by kings or sealing wax, but we've heard from those interested in fishing, agriculture, butter, margarine and, of course, organized labor.

PAID VARIETIES

HOWEVER, UNTIL THAT dim and distant day when Canadian legislatures follow the style of the U.S. Congress and demand formal registrations of all lobbyists, we shall doubtless be spared some of the odd lobbyists and odd causes they get in Washington.

For instance, I have noticed that for some years that august body has been importuned by ministerial representatives of the Christian Amendment Union. What they seek is an "amendment to the preamble of the Constitution of the United States to acknowledge Jesus Christ as Savior and King of nations."

So far they do not seem to have succeeded although, from the published reports in the Congressional Record, many of the representatives of churches in all parts of the United States have pressed the point.

EXPENSIVE BUSINESS

AND, AS THE SAME sources reveal, quite a little expense has been incurred. For instance, one lobbyist from Topeka, Kan., admits being paid $850 for his expenses—and he was but one of many lobbying for the Christian Amendment Union.

There seems to have been more missionary zeal about a certain gentleman from Pittsburgh, Pa., even though he is concerned with more mundane matters. For the lobbyist in question asserts:

"I received and expended only $106.54, costs and disbursements herein, divided: petty cash, clerical work, researching records, and addressing mail, $80.25; and for postage, printing, telephoning, carfare, etc., $26.29."

BUTTING AND 'ABUTTERS'

AND YOU MUST admit that seems pretty cheap, considering the Pittsburgh gent has been "butting in" on U.S. Congress business for some sessions past in the interest of abutters—whatever they may be. As he himself registers it, he is lobbying.

"For the purpose of furthering sentiment for a Rainhill prize for the best B line electric pipe train locomotive for major heavy freight, maximum ton miles on wheels, one-half pound per square inch absolute."

Further, he adds, he is in Washington to watch any effort to introduce legislation "for or against B line."

PUTS 'BEE' ON B LINE

TO ADD EMPHASIS to his cause, the said lobbyist puts the final "bee" on B line abutters and makes a bee-line for bold, bad barons and barbarians in the following pungent but cryptic paragraph, duly registered in the Congressional Record:

"Keep to wheels or be inflated into Dark Ages on barbarian pack animal airplanes. Do not forget communistic preaching of equal distribution of unequal earnings always gives civilization barbarians on cheapest transportation of men and deliberate omission of heavy wheel freight or logistics. Financed racket or robber barons come in for maximum bribery only a misdemeanor."

After reading that, I hope I shall never be called upon to help legislate for B lines or abutters!

Sutherland Revives Bagpipes Problem

VANCOUVER (CP)—Vancouver's Irish chief of police will have a Solomon's problem before the week is out—and every Scotsman in the country will be waiting for his judgment.

Once again police have stopped the music of bulky, brindle-bearded John Sutherland, who dragged his bagpipes through the highest court of British Columbia to fight for his rights to parade Vancouver streets blowing a skirling "Road to the Isles."

This time, says Sutherland, he'll take it up with Chief Constable Walter Mulligan. And he's a son of Ireland.

Previously Sutherland won release from Oakalla Prison when an appeal court ruled there was "no legal evidence even to suggest that the music produced by the bagpipes was a loud and objectionable noise."

Vancouver Normal School Principal In Unesco Lecture

Dr. A. R. Lord, principal of Vancouver Normal School, who was a Canadian delegate to the Unesco seminar at Ashridge, England, on training of teachers for international understanding, will give a public address here next Monday.

He will speak at Victoria College auditorium at 8:15 in the evening under sponsorship of the University Extension Association and his subject will be: "Unesco in Action."

Dr. Lord was one of three Canadian delegates to the Unesco seminar, selected by the Canadian Education Association at the request of the Department of External Affairs. The seminar included 45 delegates from 24 countries and lasted six weeks.

A good deal of time was devoted to study of the educational systems represented by the participants and particular attention was paid to the English educational system which has been altered drastically since 1945.

In his lecture here, Dr. Lord will outline the framework under which Unesco operates, and its main objectives. He then will give a full description of the seminar he attended. He will discuss the present educational programs in England as well.

Dr. Lord is a graduate of Queen's University and is a past president of the Canadian Education Association. He has been connected with education in this province for 38 years.

March Comes In Like Lamb --Know What That Means?

March came in like a lamb, as befits a dear old friend. But all's not gold that glitters—he'll be a lion in the end.

By DAVE STOCK

Baaaaa. Yes, sir. When lil' ole February bowed out of the picture last night who did we find bleating the door down but a lil' ole sheep in March clothing.

Sure, we let him in but the prophets tell us we're going to be sorry at the end of the month. By that time, they say, our lil' ole lamb is going to turn into a nasty ole lion and he is going to give us a rip-roaring time.

Sure 'nuff, that's what they say. "In like a lamb and out like a lion."

Which is really just another way of saying, "you can't have your lamb and eat it too."

It's all based on the behavior of the weather, of course. If it's nice at the first of the month then, according to the 'age-old' prophecy, it's going to be stormy on the 31st.

It works the other way too. If it's stormy at the beginning of the month, then things are supposed to be all right at the end.

When March was ushered in at midnight last night the temperature was over 40 degrees and the wind was only six miles an hour.

What the weather will be like at midnight March 31 no one knows. Guess we'll just have to wait and see.

Thousand Killed By Sleeping Pills Every Year In U.S.

By HOWARD W. BLAKESLEE

NEW YORK (AP)—Sleeping pills kill about 1,000 persons yearly in the United States.

There has been a steady, post-war rise in these deaths. More serious than the deaths, it indicates mental deterioration as a widespread penalty for misuse.

The misuse is due to a common custom. You take them without a doctor's advice.

The pills are barbiturates, one of the 10 most valuable drugs. Used by doctors, they do not cause even accidental deaths. There are about 30 varieties on the market, and about 1,500 others that could be made.

If you fear your approaching operation, the surgeon gives you a sleeping pill, and you stop worrying. Maybe you sleep, too, but ending the worry is the tip on the potent powers of barbiturates.

PREVENT CONVULSIONS

The pills quiet nerves, prevent epileptic convulsions, relieve St. Vitus dance and convulsions of rabies. They are antidotes for the convulsions of strychnine, cocaine and some other poisons. They are one of the world's most valuable medicines.

But doctors watch for signs of dizziness, rolling eyes, hallucinations, thick speech, or temporary paralysis of limbs.

Many states have laws permitting sale of sleeping pills only on a doctor's prescription. But bootlegging gets around these laws in big cities. People start taking them without a doctor's advice for many reasons, some innocent.

"My doctor takes sleeping pills. Why shouldn't I?" Thus a woman writer started. She took them daily for three years. Her mind deteriorated until she was unable to identify close relatives.

In medical records there are numerous examples of mental damage. Nearly always there is a temporary mental slow-down, so that some health authorities say you ought not to drive after taking pills for a few nights.

Royal Trust Names Winslow For Board

F. E. WINSLOW, O.B.E.

F. E. Winslow has been appointed a member of the Victoria advisory board of the Royal Trust Co. and is succeeded by R. W. Phipps as manager of the local branch of the company, it was announced today.

Mr. Winslow was born in Fredericton, N.B. He joined the Bank of Montreal in that city and received his early business training with the bank there and in Montreal. After leaving the Bank of Montreal, he was actively engaged in New Brunswick in the manufacturing business for five years.

He moved to Victoria in 1912, where he was engaged in the real estate business until 1915.

In that year he re-joined the Bank of Montreal here and from there he was appointed in 1916 to the Royal Trust Company, where he succeeded A. M. J. English as manager, at which time the staff consisted of himself and his secretary and was located in basement offices of the Bank of Montreal, Government Street building.

Under Mr. Winslow's management in the succeeding years, The Royal Trust Company, Victoria branch, has grown steadily and at the present time its staff numbers over 50.

In addition to his very active management of The Royal Trust, Mr. Winslow has actively led or participated in practically every worthwhile community organization and was an energetic and valued honorary member of the 5th B.C. Coast Brigade, R.C.A.

For his national and community services he was awarded the O.B.E. in July, 1946.

Wants Car Driver's Test Examination Reviewed

No matter what the superintendent of motor vehicles may think, G. W. Robinson is of the opinion that the examination for passing your driver's test should be thoroughly reviewed.

Most of the questions asked in the present examination, he wrote to the Victoria Automobile Club, were of a technical nature having to do with subjects which were more for a motor mechanic than a driver.

In his opinion a proper test should deal with driving conditions, such as knowledge of road signs and traffic lights.

"But it is stupid to require a driver to have to know all about candlepower of globes for motorcycles and trailers," he wrote.

Under the present system, he points out, "some young punk can learn these questions readily and yet is absolutely irresponsible to handle a car."

"On the other hand, he added, "these questions referred to are very difficult for an elderly person who sometimes failed in their tests when otherwise they are perfectly eligible to drive."

George I. Warren, secretary, told the club that the letter had been referred to George A. Hood, superintendent of motor vehicles, who had replied that failure to answer these technical questions never disqualified the examinee.

Mr. Robinson in reply to Mr. Hood's letter wrote that he still was not satisfied and felt that something should be done to review the matter.

New Pace In Cold War Set By Red Sympathizers

LONDON (AP) — Communist declarations in western Europe that an invading Soviet army would be welcomed and assisted set a new pace in the cold war today.

Communist party leaders in France, Italy, Germany and Britain in the last week have spoken along the same line, in marked reversal of the conciliatory tones of the recent so-called peace offensive.

The opinion that a master's voice was speaking and that the new course of Communist strategy indicates the introduction of a more vigorous policy was expressed in some quarters here. British sources said obviously the various statements "were inspired by a central directive."

The latest Communist spokesman to voice threats is Harry Pollitt, general secretary of the British Communist Party. He was quoted by the Communist Daily Worker Monday night as declaring British Communists would try to sabotage any "imperialist aggressive war" against Russia. In event of such a war, British Communists would organize strikes and "councils of action."

JAMES WILLIAM LAZARUK

4-Year-Old Boy Victim Of Double-Car Crash

James William Lazaruk, 1729 Oak Bay Avenue, one month short of being four years old, was crushed to death and two playmates narrowly escaped the same fate in an accident with an upside-down spinning car near the intersection of Oak Bay Avenue and Richmond Road Monday evening.

It was the second Victoria traffic fatality of 1949.

The boy was the only child of Mr. and Mrs. Nick Lazaruk. The father is a leading seaman at present on H.M.C.S. Crescent now at Shanghai, China, who was informed of the tragedy by wireless shortly after it had occurred.

Summoned by F. Briers by telephone, a squad of city police led by Deputy Chief John Blackstock found that the little boy had been crushed against a telephone pole by a 1948 model English Hillman sedan driven by Harry E. White, about 60, 2377 Central Avenue.

James Lazaruk had been playing with his wagon east of the intersection nearly 100 feet from where the accident started. Kenneth Towney, aged 9, and his younger sister, Patricia, of the same address as the dead boy, were a few feet away from the telephone pole.

AFTER COLLISION

The police report stated that an automobile driven east on Oak Bay Avenue by White had been in collision with an auto driven south on Richmond and entering the intersection driven by Harry Oswald English, 2832 Dewdney Avenue, principal of the Victoria Normal School.

"After the impact the White car turned over and continued east on Oak Bay Avenue spinning around on its top, colliding with the little lad and apparently crushing him against the pole.

"The auto came to rest on the east side of the pole on the south side of the avenue, 97 feet from the point of impact," the report continued.

Constables James Strong and Brian Ferguson rushed the lad to Jubilee Hospital where Dr. G. J. MacKenzie, interne, pronounced him extinct, probably due to head injuries.

The Lazaruk child's wagon and the White car were taken to the police station and are being held in the west yard.

The police report said that Dr. E. L. McKivney examined White and the passenger in his car, Robert H. Blades, 2367 Central Avenue, at the police station. They were unhurt.

WHEEL BROKEN OFF

The Normal School principal's car was only slightly damaged, the White car extensively. Among other damage one wheel was broken off.

Mr. English said he had stopped at the northerly stop sign at the intersection and was proceeding slowly south across the intersection. Passenger in his car was H. Gilliland, 840 Richmond Ave.

Sgt. Steve Dunnell supervised the taking of measurements at the scene.

The body was taken to McCall Bros. Funeral Parlors at the request of the mother, Colla Lazaruk, a Scottish Canadian. Leading seaman Lazaruk is of Polish extraction. They came to Victoria in 1945.

The police have secured the names of several witnesses, but wish any other persons who saw the accident to get in touch with the station immediately.

This was the second fatal accident in a single week in Victoria. To date this year in the other municipalities and Provincial Police territory in the outlying districts there have been no accidents involving deaths.

David A. Williams, 20, 855 Fort Street, son of Mr. and Mrs. F. Williams of that address, died in hospital from injuries received when the motorcycle he was driving was in collision with a car at Douglas and Herald Streets.

Accident occurred last Wednesday evening and Williams died in hospital Friday afternoon at 1:04. John Turner, 22, 1814 Quadra Street, owner of the bike, a passenger on this occasion, is in Jubilee Hospital being treated for injuries.

Overcome By Smoke

WINNIPEG (CP) — A Winnipeg housewife was recovering in hospital today after rescue by firemen Monday when she ran back into her blazing home in an attempt to save her pet lovebird and a fur coat.

Mrs. Doris Annan, 21, was carried down a ladder by firemen after she had been trapped and overcome by smoke in her second-story bedroom.

Another occupant of the house, Mrs. Leslie McDonald, rushed up to another upstairs bedroom and carried out her two-year-old child who had been sleeping when the fire broke out.

Mrs. McDonald and Mrs. Annan were going through the downstairs hallway to the front door when the latter turned back.

The fire, which was confined to the basement, caused little damage to the house.

St. Laurent, Drew Stage Angry Tilt On Commons Floor

OTTAWA — Prime Minister Louis St. Laurent and Opposition Leader George Drew made a series of angry denunciations of each in the House of Commons Monday afternoon when the Prime Minister accused Mr. Drew of "irresponsibility" and was in turn accused of lack of "courage and decency."

In a short but hot exchange as the House opened its day's session, the two leaders slugged it out in a battle that started over a speech that Mr. Drew made in Montreal during the week-end and spread from there to the federal government's wartime charge against Mr. Drew over his Hongkong expedition statements.

As the shouting of boisterous partisans of the two at times drowned out their words, they hurled accusation and counter-accusation across the floor.

Not since the two took up positions across the Commons floor from each other had either appeared in such an angry mood.

UPSET WATER ON DESK

Mr. Drew at one point knocked over his water glass with the violence of his gestures.

The Prime Minister accused Mr. Drew of making an "irresponsible and unwarranted" attack on public servants in his Montreal speech.

After defending himself, Mr. Drew retaliated by declaring that the present Prime Minister, as Minister of Justice in wartime, had "neither the courage to proceed with nor the decency to withdraw" the charge that had been laid against Mr. Drew under the Defence of Canada regulations in connection with the latter's statements on the Hongkong expedition.

In reply, Mr. St. Laurent said he "completely and unreservedly" denied that charge.

HOUSE IN TURMOIL

The super-heated exchange between the two chiefs threw the House into its biggest commotion of the session.

Shouting, feet-stamping and desk-thumping members on both sides of the chamber kept the House in a turmoil as the scrap raged for about 15 minutes. Speaker Gaspard Fauteux had to call repeatedly for order.

Mr. St. Laurent started it off at the very opening as he rose on what he called a question of personal privilege to complain about a quotation from a speech Mr. Drew delivered at McGill University.

The Prime Minister said the Progressive Conservative leader has been quoted as saying: "Make no mistake about it, we are fighting for personal and economic freedom here in Canada today. We are in very real danger of losing that fight to the bureaucrats who accept the basic philosophy of Karl Marx no matter what political name they may adopt."

Mr. St. Laurent said that, while this might be regarded as an attack on the government, he had no complaint about that; the government could defend itself.

DEMANDED PROOF

But, with his temper rising, he called on Mr. Drew to name individuals and produce proofs if he had proof that deputy ministers or other senior civil servants "accept the basic philosophy of Karl Marx."

Those who knew the public servant, he said, were likely to regard any such general charges as "absurd."

"However," he added, "I feel I would be failing in my duty if I did not publicly repudiate as irresponsible and unwarranted such an attack on a group of people who, by our constitutional practice, are not in a position to defend themselves unless charged individually and specifically."

"In the long run, I do not think our people will be much impressed by sweeping and irresponsible statements which are not backed up by the slightest bit of evidence. That is not the Canadian tradition of justice and fair play."

WITHDRAWN JULY 10, 1942

It was in 1942 that Mr. Drew's criticism of the handling of the Hongkong situation — partly based on his information as a counsel in the Duff Royal Commission inquiry of the expedition — brought him under the Defence of Canada Regulations charge.

The charge was laid June 25, 1942, and was withdrawn July 10. Mr. Drew at the time was Ontario opposition leader.

A letter Mr. Drew subsequently wrote to the then Prime Minister King has never been tabled by the government, despite off-and-on attempts by opposition members to have it accorded the status of a public document through that method.

The Winnipeg Tribune and the Toronto Telegram published a partial text of the 32-page letter, deleting those portions which might contravene censorship regulations. The Canadian Press submitted the letter to censors, but was advised no part of it could be approved.

On March 11, 1948, when evidence and exhibits of the Hongkong inquiry were tabled in the House of Commons, the Canadian Press carried a full summary of the Drew letter. The letter was not among the 1,000,000 words of exhibits tabled.

As Monday's exchange ended, Mr. Drew, amid another flurry of applause, jeers and shouts of "order," got up once more to say he would table his letter today. It would, he said, deal fully with Mr. St. Laurent's position.

Dr. Whitton Implies Alberta Not To Implement Report

MEDICINE HAT (CP) — Dr. Charlotte Whitton, Ottawa welfare expert, said in an address here there is "considerable suggestion" the Alberta government does not intend to implement recommendations of the royal commission which investigated child welfare administration in the province.

Dr. Whitton, who prepared a report which led to the probe, spoke to the Medicine Hat Canadian Club. In 1947 she made a survey of welfare conditions in the Alberta Branch of the Imperial Order Daughters of the Empire.

The royal commission's report issued in December made 22 recommendations in connection with child welfare affairs in the province and suggested placement of babies in the United States should be discontinued.

"It is now two months since the royal commission report on child welfare was released by the government itself," Dr. Whitton said. "That report was explicit beyond the faith or hopes of the I.O.D.E. study committee or staff. It carries the prestige of three judges of Alberta in its findings."

"Yet after visits to both the north and south of the province over the last three weeks, I find little or no indication that the government of Alberta intends to implement its own report. In fact, there is considerable suggestion to the contrary."

Maple Syrup Season

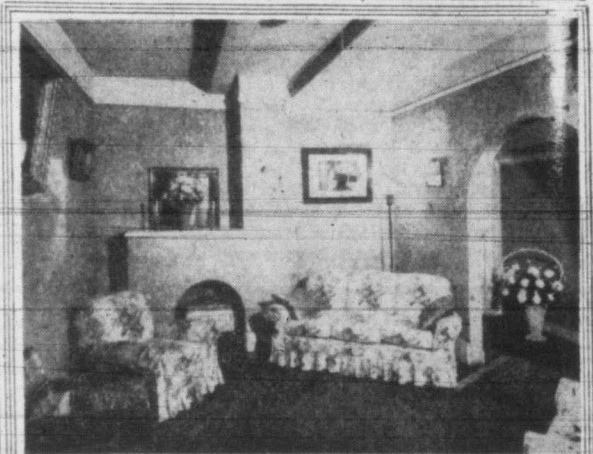

NORWICH, Ont. (CP) — Sap is running in this Oxford County district and one farmer has several hundred pails out. The first syrup is reported to be of good quality and free tapping is expected to become general this week.

Wholesale Prices Decline Slightly

OTTAWA (CP) — Wholesale prices in Canada showed a further slight decline in January, according to the Bureau of Statistics general wholesale index. Decline in the index during the month was .2 per cent, identical to that shown in December. At this year's January level the index was 124 points above January last year. The index for January, on the base 1926 equals 100, stood at 159.3 compared with 159.5 in December, 159.7 in November, and 146.9 in January last year.

HERE WE ARE AGAIN

WE ARE TOLD THAT REPETITION IS monotonous. This may be true. But we are in no way deterred. Our repeat performance has to do solely with the proposal of amalgamation—the merging of the four municipalities which constitute the area of Greater Victoria.

Eleven years ago in these columns we began to agitate against the continuance of a state of affairs which then was, and is now, a fantastic community structure from the point of view of civic politics. Ponderous—if generalities can be ponderous—pronouncements which followed in the wake of Mr. Anscomb's record budget convinced us that the time had arrived to try to bring home to the elected representatives of Victoria, Oak Bay, Saanich, and Esquimalt the vital necessity of getting down to "brass tacks" in respect of this question of amalgamation.

We are familiar with all the objections. We could recite them without referring to our editorial files. But several leaders of public thought have given their considered opinion for publication. None is particularly convincing. Some of the original opponents of the sales tax are now complaining that, while municipal finances will profit to some extent, it had been hoped that a greater return would be forthcoming. One of the city's aldermen, for example, voiced his apprehension lest Victoria's share of the sales tax disbursement should not cover the wage increases of employees. Another thought the school budget "should be the responsibility of the provincial government." And when one able member of the aldermanic board of the City of Victoria said the government's financial assistance would relieve real property owners only to the extent of the amount received, we felt like suggesting to ourselves that five dollars is five dollars—going or coming.

In case we may be charged with flippancy, we plead not guilty, for the problem we are considering is one of supreme interest and concern to all the people who inhabit the southeastern portion of this highly-favored part of British Columbia. It involves the economic future and the happiness of the residents of Victoria, of Oak Bay, of Saanich, and of Esquimalt.

Let us be precise: Victoria needs and can cater for many more residents of the right kind—people who are willing and competent to become part of the warp and woof of Vancouver Island's general economy. This remark applies to Oak Bay, Saanich, and Esquimalt. And how do we advertise this capital city of the province? Reference works—which, by the way, advertisers and prospective citizens consult—give us a population of around 41,000. Why not? How can citizens of Jackson Heights in New York or Shaker Heights in Cleveland differentiate between Victoria, Oak Bay, Saanich, and Esquimalt and arrive at the conclusion that Greater Victoria rightly can boast of a population of more than 100,000? They cannot. The three latter communities do not appear in the explanatory letterpress.

We repeat these facts because we must be realistic in the days ahead. It is time to drop parochial politics. The time for practical action has arrived. We are not a community of 41,000. Our population is now more than 100,000 and would be recognized as such if the four civic entities became one.

EMPHASIZING THE MINORITY

COMMENTS OF THE OTTAWA JOURNAL on remarks of a retiring Ontario Court of Appeals Justice, relative to the delinquency of parents, help to restore some balance to the too-frequently lopsided attitude which is adopted by those who discuss the faulty rearing of children in our age. The judge in question had attacked parents who "slip out of their homes and get saturated" in beverage rooms, and had directed his fire on "mothers particularly" who drink liquor excessively in the presence of their children. The member of the bench had further criticized parents who see too many movies, go to too many dances, indulge too much in sports, and revel in all this "over-abundance of luxury." The individual in question held them responsible for the "downfall and loss of good principles in their children."

What the judge said should be heeded. He has directed the glare of publicity to that section of our adult citizenry which fails to recognize its responsibilities. But, as the Journal points out, his generalization is too sweeping. It continues:

"Some parents neglect their children—some always have—but far more sacrifice themselves for their children. For one mother who drinks too much and neglects her family for movies and dances there are hundreds or thousands who live only for their children, sacrifice their own comfort to work for them, save rigorously that their children may have every possible educational advantage."

The incontrovertible truth of the Journal's statement directs our attention to the emphasis which is placed on children on this continent. True, they are the future directors of national and international affairs. And, as the Ottawa newspaper points out in its editorial, they are being subjected to so many influences—radio, outside pressures, moving pictures and the incessant and sometimes spurious appeals of interests with a specific cause to serve—that they are often being raised in an environment of confusion.

Their importance in the scheme of things is in no way discounted. But we are moved to echo the inquiry of a British exchange teacher now engaged on the staff of a school in this locality. Must all the whims and inclinations of children be met? Do not the adults have some rights as well as responsibilities? Granted, the Ottawa judge has a very definite point in his criticism of the parental irresponsibility shown by a few of our adults; but are we not losing our perspective when we judge children on the basis of those who are the offspring of such parents and exaggerate their importance in our society?

KISS OF DEATH

WHATEVER COL. ROBT. MCCORMICK, publisher of the isolationist Chicago Tribune, may think of the medal he has received from President Juan Peron, the dictatorial boss of Argentina, most observers will be inclined to view it as "an embarrassment of riches." The way in which Peron has run his country, as well as his methods of influencing the press, the public and any individuals who are bold enough to offer him outright opposition, are not such as to endear him to true believers in democracy.

Peron, and Franco of Spain, are the two outstanding exponents of the type of order and regimentation that featured Adolf Hitler's regime, even though some other current political structures may differ more in name than in substance from the Fuehrer's idea of the perfect state. For that reason Col. McCormick will not—or at any rate should not—be proud of his latest decoration. In any case it is difficult to imagine the type of public or social function to which he could wear it on his return home. It wouldn't look too well, for instance, alongside the Purple Hearts which so many citizens of the United States are entitled to wear.

SULPHUR AND MOLASSES

EVEN WITHOUT THE INTOXICATING sunshine by which winter's long seige has been lifted here, this would be a day to disrupt the ordinary office routine. The trout season has opened; and this, with the virulent epidemic of spring fever spreading simultaneously, sends human thoughts soaring far beyond the prosaic issue of budgets, cold wars and the exacting study of domestic and international scenes. There is work to be done, as there is always work to be done at this season, but the mind is truant.

It is not the busy traffic a man sees as he gazes from his office window. It is the dappled shade of the stream, rushing and bubbling in spate toward the lake. It is not the slender length of a pencil a man holds in his hand as he stares beyond external things. It is the limber wand of a fishing rod, with which he makes imaginary casts to the spinning foam turning in the deep pool. Tread softly if you find him in his abstraction. For though the coarse clay of his physical being may be present, his heart and mind are distant, weaving idyllic patterns of that delicate stuff spun by spring's necromancy and the opening of the fishing season.

OUSTED FROM THE FOLD

ONE OF THE BITTEREST CRITICS OF Britain's Foreign Secretary Ernest Bevin has been a member of his own party, the far left-winger Konni Zilliacus. His dislike of the British foreign policy—the support accorded the European recovery program, the Western Union arrangement, the Atlantic Pact, and other procedures which have not been welcomed by Moscow—has driven him to greater opposition than even the Conservatives have, on political grounds, been moved to express.

Casual observers, who might on occasion have been tempted to charge the Labor Party with harboring views similar to those of Mr. Zilliacus, will have been reassured as to British level-headedness by the recent move of the Labor Party's national executive committee. The body has refused to endorse the member for re-election at the next elections, expected in 1950. Mr. Zilliacus must therefore run as an independent or retire from the parliamentary field—preferably the latter. It remains to be seen whether the electors of the borough of Gateshead, in Durham, who once gave him a majority of 19,000, will urge him to return.

HE HAS NO SAY

AN INDICATION OF THE WAY IN which Communism rides roughshod over the hopes and desires of the individual in favor of subservience to the all-powerful state may be seen in the disclosure of Gen. Nicolae Radescu, the former Premier of Rumania, that the Soviet Union is forcibly removing the native population from some of its border areas and replacing them with Russians. Russia may feel that the needs of the state for military security justify such wholesale evacuations. But the result is measured in the upset homes, the disrupted lives and the broken families left in the wake of the juggernaut. Where the state is supreme and its citizens are merely tools to be used for the good of the government, these are not important considerations. The Communist citizen lives in a continual state of "war" and his life is ordered accordingly.

Walter Lippmann

THE DEFENCE OF WEAK NATIONS

THE OTHER DAY the New York Times reminded us that in January, 1947, Soviet Russia asked Norway for military bases on Spitzbergen. Sovereignty over Spitzbergen was disputed by Norway, Sweden and Russia for nearly fifty years until in 1919 the Supreme Council of the Allies of the First World War awarded it to Norway. The treaty awarding it was later ratified by the Soviet Union. This group of islands, which lies far north in the Arctic Ocean, has now become of very considerable strategic importance because it is on and near the air highways of the Arctic. The direct route, for example, from Seattle to Moscow would pass right over Spitzbergen.

THE DEMAND WAS REFUSED by Norway and, as the New York Times says, "Soviet Russia did not get the Spitzbergen bases." Its editorial writer cites this incident to explain, at least in part, the desire of the Norwegian government to enter the proposed Atlantic Pact.

Perhaps. But what also needs to be explained is why in 1947 Norway was able successfully to refuse the Russian demands. Two years ago nobody had mentioned the Atlantic Pact. Nobody had mentioned the Marshall plan. Nobody had mentioned American rearmament based on conscription. Norway itself was, of course, virtually disarmed and there were no military defences on Spitzbergen. What, then, caused the Russian government to refrain from insisting, indeed from putting some troops ashore to take the bases?

THERE CAN BE ONLY one explanation: The realization that if the Norwegian refusal was overridden by force, it would be an act of overt aggression, that is to say, an act of war, which would arouse the United States and Great Britain, whose vital interests would be affected, to counter-measures of force.

This incident, illustrating the successful defence by a weak, small country of an undefended territory, is worth thinking about. For there are, as it were, Spitzbergs all around the vast periphery of the Soviet Union—for example South Korea, Iran, Turkey, Norway and Denmark. None of them, that is to say, could now or in the foreseeable future be defended successfully against invasion by the Red Army.

ARE THEY THEN UNDEFENDED? The answer is that they are defended, not because the Red Army could not march in if the Kremlin gave the order but because the Kremlin will not give the order unless it is prepared to fight, not Norway or Iran, but the United States. In military jargon the weak and exposed countries are defended not by their local defences but by the balance of power.

But are they defended adequately? The answer, it seems to me, is that the menace of the Red Army remains wherever it is capable of making contact with a Communist fifth column. The essential menace of the Russian power lies in the combination of the Red Army and the local Communist fifth column. It is the combination of the two that anyone who would conduct affairs must bear in mind.

THE LOCAL COMMUNISTS alone—separated from the Red Army—have never anywhere at any time in more than 30 years succeeded in establishing themselves in any country. They have tried it in many countries, but have always been suppressed. Nor is there any case, except the very special case of Finland in 1940, where the Red Army has invaded another country. Eastern Europe was overrun in the great counter-offensive against the Nazi invasion of Russia.

But there are many cases where Russia has expanded her power by the combination of the local Communist apparatus and the Red Army. Czechoslovakia is an example.

CHINA ILLUSTRATES the same principle in another way. Though there is no evidence of substantial Soviet military support of the Chinese Communists, the Russians could have given it quite easily. They could more easily and more cheaply have reinforced the Chinese Communists than the United States could have reinforced the anti-Communists. For they have a common land frontier 4,000 miles long with China.

Yugoslavia illustrates the same principle. The reason Tito could rebel was that, unlike Benes, he had an open frontier with the West and no frontier with the Red Army. Almost certainly the Soviet pressure on Hungary, of which the Cardinal's trial is a feature, is actuated by the fact that from Hungary direct pressure can be exerted on Yugoslavia.

IF THIS ANALYSIS IS CORRECT, then, the danger points in the world are those places where there exists actually or potentially a fifth column within marching distance of the Red Army. It follows that the cardinal principle of over-all American strategy should be to prevent the combination of the Red Army and the fifth column.

The combination cannot exist in countries in which the Red Army, checked by the fear of a world war, cannot advance. The combination will not exist wherever the Red Army retreats and loses direct contact. The combination will not exist where there is no fifth column, where through good government it is not encouraged, where by strong government it can be suppressed indubitably.

As Our Readers See It

FUNDS NEEDED NOW

At the last annual meeting of the subscribers to the B.C. Protestant Orphans' Home held recently in the City Hall, the hon. treasurer's report showed a deficit of $8,933 in operating costs for 1948, being $5,000 more than for 1947, largely due to lesser bequests and gifts.

This orphanage has been privately operated for 75 years by a board of managers of Victoria's business men, who are annually elected by the subscribers and all their labors are voluntary, the staff at the home being the only ones on the payroll. The services of the physicians, Doctors Bryant and Hewitt; the dentist, Doctor Saich; the solicitor, Mr. J. B. Clearline, K.C.; and auditor, Mr. Reginald Genn, are all rendered to this charity, free of cost.

The orphanage is supported by voluntary contributions plus some maintenance fees and gifts. No public appeals are made, such as tag days, or door-to-door canvassing, etc. Contrary to public opinion, the home receives no public grants from the government or the city, depending upon charity-disposed citizens for support, which has been generous. The board has to provide for all the requirements of the orphanage, including the payment of city taxes, the total expenditure for the years 1948 amounting to $23,938.

In the many years of operation this orphanage has turned out into the world many hundreds of boys and girls, as strong, healthy and happy young Christian citizens, many of whom have made their mark in the world. It has been the endeavor of the board to run the orphanage more as a home than along institutional lines, thus doing away with that feeling of charity amongst the children.

The time has come, owing to the high cost of living, when the board has to appeal for further support from the citizens, to help current expenditures, which will be deeply appreciated by the officers and board. Donations can be made in favor of the British Columbia Protestant Orphans' Home, corner Cook Street and Hillside Avenue, Victoria, B.C., which will be gratefully acknowledged.

The matron will gladly show friends through the orphanage at any convenient time.

APPRECIATES HELP

I should like, through your newspaper on behalf of the Girl Guide Association of Greater Victoria, to thank the T. Eaton Company for their kindness and co-operation in allowing the guide display during Scout-

IN THE BALANCES

Further to the article by Joseph L. Rutledge, "Drawing a False Parallel," (Times, Feb. 28). Having reference to the Christian church rejecting the ideologies of both communism and laissez-faire capitalism.

It looks as if the World Council of Churches isn't prepared to confine Christianity to the letter. Christianity being infinite in application and universal in scope.

Can the same be said of either capitalism or communism? Are both founded on the letter rather than the spirit? Each confined to an economy of three dimensions whatever their ideologies?

The question, "What profiteth it a man if he gain the whole world and lose his own soul?" is still pertinent. Christianity asks this question!

Thus laissez-faire capitalism and communism are today weighed in the balance by the World Council of Churches.

The Way To A United Europe

By RAYMOND HENRY

THE Council of Europe has been launched, and the fact that satisfaction on this point is general and not confined to the circle of the Five Powers directly responsible, proves that European Union is no longer a subject which is viewed by the masses with either indifference or ironic scepticism. It has become familiar to them. It has left the realms of Utopia.

PRINCIPLE ACCEPTED

The principle of European collaboration had already been accepted—through O.E.E.C. in the economic sphere and through the Brussels Pact in the military sphere. It remained to apply this collaboration to the sphere of politics. This is now as good as done; and France can be proud that she has played an important part in the matter. She was the first country to show an official interest in those proposals for European union which were put forward by private organizations; and it was through her efforts that the proposals were considered by other governments—in particular, by the Consultative Council of the Five Brussels Pact Powers.

There were, however, wide differences between French and British ideas of European Union. Paris, supported by Brussels, was in favor of an Assembly of representatives chosen by public opinion and operating as a Parliament; whereas London foresaw a plan wherein representatives chosen by their own governments would work in close co-operation with them.

These views seemed irreconcilable and the fourth meeting of the Five seemed only to emphasize their disagreement.

COMPROMISE TERMS

But to everyone's surprise, and thanks particularly to the perseverance of Monsieur Schuman, the terms of a compromise were worked out in London: "An Executive Council at Ministerial Level" meeting in private session would have the right to make decisions; while a "Consultative Body," whose meetings would be public, would function as a consultative assembly, with the right to submit its findings to the Council of Ministers.

In the matter of this Consultative Body, France is satisfied with having obtained two important concessions. On the one hand, each country is to be left free to choose her representatives as she thinks fit, and on the other, the vote will be taken on an "individual" basis and not by delegations.

Other details have been settled by the Permanent Commission for Western Union; The Consultative Body, named above, will discuss questions on which its advice is sought by the Council of Ministers; but it is also permitted to discuss questions of an economic, social, cultural or judicial nature on its own initiative. Its decisions will be taken on a majority basis and, finally, it will, under normal conditions, meet annually.

ON ITS WAY

Certainly there are ends which remain to be tied up. But it does seem as though European Union had at last started out on its journey. Time, patience and diplomacy are needed before all the countries of Europe take their place within the Union and before all are in complete agreement on every point.

But the principle is accepted. The Consultative Body will have the immense advantage of acting as an amplifier, as a sounding board, for the discussions of the Council of Ministers. And the fact that its sessions will be public will inspire the peoples of Europe to new reflexes, by accustomed them to view problems no longer purely from the national angle or exclusively from the party point of view.

TAKEN ROOT

So all things considered, the London agreement is a success. It does not constitute a victory for one country or group of countries over another; it is a victory for good will, where all the protagonists have made conciliatory gestures. It is, too, a victory for European solidarity. A first and worthy effort at harmony has been made between the supporters of different philosophies and civilizations. The idea has taken root; time will do the rest.

BRITAIN already is getting set for the great political struggle which will determine whether she is to continue along the road of socialism or revert to conservatism.

It's just over 3½ years since the Labor party swept into power under the leadership of Clement Attlee. It brought the downfall of Winston Churchill, wartime Prime Minister who was idolized as the man who had led the country through her trial of "blood, toil, tears and sweat."

Britain has had a fair initial run into socialism—enough so that she knows what it is. Under normal circumstances June of next year will bring another general election. Then the country will take a stock and decide whether she will stick to her leftist course or swing back to the right.

Labor has nationalized numerous undertakings in capitalist Britain. Among them are overseas airways, the Bank of England, cable and wireless communications, the coal mines, railroad and inland water transport, and the electricity supply. A steel nationalization measure now is before parliament, and the chemical industry is a possibility.

The government even has dared the political elements by providing universal free medicine. This naturally has been met with mixed emotions, but it is popular with the man in the street.

WATCHING CLOSELY

How far dare the Socialists go with nationalization? The government has been watching general reaction closely and anxiously.

Socialism is on trial in a big way in Britain. It can make or break itself before next year's election.

The party has held that the public reaction seemed fair enough. In some 40 parliamentary by-elections since the government came to power, it hasn't lost one. Then last week came an outstanding test in a by-election at South Hammersmith.

South Hammersmith normally is Conservative, but has been held by Labor since the last general election. Consequently it was made a testing ground. Churchill himself hurled some of the world's most powerful oratory into the campaign.

Labor won, and set the Conservatives back on their heels.

So, with this political gauge to go by, we find both parties swinging into action to get set for 1950 general election.

SHRINE TO YOUTH

Windsor Star

It has not been shown that the late Rudolph Valentino rates a shrine, but some admirers of the screen idol of other years are determined he shall have one, and hang the expense.

It's a rather horrible thought that years hence graying bobby-soxers of this era may be pooling their resources to raise a Taj Mahal to "The Voice." But that, happily, is a contingency that can be left to the long-suffering manhood of its time.

DIVERSIFIED METHODS

We are not prepared to say Mr. Carr is a spy. We would prefer to wait until he is tried in open court by a jury of his peers. The Communists evidently are. As far as they are concerned dear old Sam has had it and they want no more part of him.

Those with nasty minds will argue that, knowing all the circumstances, they can undoubtedly tell whether he is guilty or innocent, and, knowing them all, they have found him guilty and fired him out of the party. But that is not the Canadian way. It is the Soviet way.

YOUTHFUL EMIGRATION

London (Ont.) Free Press

That there should be this almost universal desire of British youth to go to the Dominions is evidence of what youth is thinking about living out the future years in Britain, and of the comparative opportunities in Britain and in the Dominions. There are various angles to the situation.

Their departure may deprive Britain of some of her most valuable young manhood, but it will, in turn, strengthen the Dominions, who need such material if they are to expand along democratic lines. Besides, it will help to reduce population pressure in Britain, which is now too high. Some forty-eight million persons in so small an island. Britain would be better off with a considerably smaller population than she is now trying to support and feed.

B.C. Resources Being Used As Political Football, Winch

Opposition Leader Harold E. Winch indicated in the Legislature Monday that the C.C.F. would welcome the proposed $300,000,000 development of the Aluminum Company of Canada, but he urged that all such proposals be thoroughly investigated "to ensure that the development be on a fair basis, fair to all concerned and that the people's rights in their resources shall be protected."

At the same time Mr. Winch charged that the government was trying to use the proposed development of B.C. resources as a political football. He said that with federal and provincial elections in the offing both parties seemed to be all set to campaign on the basis that industry would not move to B.C. unless the C.C.F. were defeated.

"Such a political manoeuvre is unfair, unsound and unjust, because it has been the C.C.F. on the floor of this Legislature which has been continually and militantly hammering away at the government on the necessity of long-term planning and new industrial development," he said.

Mr. Winch claimed that, if there were any fears in industry and financial circles as to the advisability of development in B.C., it was not because of the C.C.F., but because of the untruths and distortions publicized by the Liberals and Conservatives, and in particular Finance Minister Anscomb.

The Opposition Leader noted that the Aluminum Company had been described as a great international trust, that it was obvious from its financial statements that the company could not run its present operations and put up $300,000,000 for investment in this province unless B.C. makes available water power and other assets that could be used as security for such financing.

"In view of the company's financial statement I think it is important for this government to make clear in what manner the company intends to finance the tune of $300,000,000 in this province," he said.

This, he said, was of vital importance, because the company may have to face some immense contingent liabilities. He said that Aluminum Limited, a U.S. company of which Alcoa was a wholly owned subsidiary, had received, following the completion of the Shipshaw development during the war, a special accelerated depreciation of $154,500,000 on the ground that this was a purely war development and would not be fully usable after the war.

"I would point out that as the Aluminum Company now is apparently desirous of duplicating Shipshaw-Arvida development in this province through a proposed $300,000,000 expansion program, that there could have been no ground upon which the Quebec plan should be written down by 40 per cent of cost at the taxpayers' expense," he said, adding the question may be raised in the House of Commons.

Mr. Winch said there was evidence that Alcoa, while producing aluminum at Arvida in 1939 for 8.31 cents per pound had sold to Britain at 20 cents per pound.

PROFITS FROM BRITAIN

"This huge profit, representing millions of dollars, was taken from Great Britain at the time of her greatest need," he said, adding that undoubtedly had Britain received fair treatment then, she would have more Canadian dollars available now to buy salmon, berries, apples, lumber, and other things.

"There is no doubt that the Aluminum Company of Canada, which dominates the aluminum business, is a cartel organization," referring to the anti-trust case of the U.S. government against aluminum interests.

Mr. Winch said that since the aluminum companies, if given water rights, would be in a position to control what industries could develop in addition to their own, the C.C.F. suggested that the development proceed on an understanding that over a period of time, based upon quantity of metal produced, the ownership of the power plants would revert to the crown on an honest compensation basis, with a full guarantee to the investing companies of their requirements of electric power.

"In this way only will the province be fully guaranteed directive power in the development of its resources and the establishment of new industries and the maintenance, under public control of our great non-depleting resources," he said.

Reject Wage Raise For Island Freight Services Employees

A conciliation board, in a majority report, contended today that the Island Freight Service Ltd. and two of its subsidiaries were not in a position to grant any wage increase to its employees.

Rev. K. L. Sandercock, chairman, and W. H. M. Haldane, nominee of the employer on the board, came to this conclusion. R. Noble, nominee of the employees, disagreed with this opinion and will submit a minority report to the Labor Relations Board.

"It would appear from evidence that the present margin in profit is so small that any increase in wages would jeopardize the company's position and possibly result in loss of employment," said the majority award. Mr. Sandercock and Mr. Haldane "felt that in view of the evidence laid before the board as to the state of the employer's business, they could not recommend an increase in wages at this time."

This opinion was given by the board in connection with a dispute between the Island Freight Service Ltd., and its subsidiaries, Mills Carriers Ltd. and Cowichan Freight Service Ltd., and the Vancouver Island Drivers' Division 234 of the Canadian Brotherhood of Railway Employees and other Transport Workers (C.C.L.). The board agreed unanimously under dispute. They dealt mainly with conditions of work and payments of expenses.

Fears Danger Of Closing Areas To Hunters, Fishermen

The concern of fishermen and hunters that crown forest lands turned over to companies under forest management licenses may no longer be available to them was voiced in the Legislature Monday afternoon by James Mowat, Coalition, Alberni.

"With the advent of leases comprising as high as 1,000,000 acres, partially logged or seeded by the great industries, it is natural that if access is denied to people who have these (hunting and fishing) licenses, then we will be issuing licenses under false pretences," he said, in the budget debate.

Mr. Mowat foresaw the logging companies telling the general public that the fire risk was too great for admission to these lands to be permitted, and that there was much other open land where hunting and fishing could be carried on.

He predicted that sportsmen would stay at home rather than go to the extra expense of getting to the open lands.

Another Plea For Coast Guard Service

The voice of James Mowat, Coalition, Alberni, was added Monday to those members of the Legislature seeking the establishment of a coast guard service for the B.C. coast.

Mr. Mowat told the Legislature that a radar position finder should be operated from the lighthouse near Ucluelet to send out signals. This, he said, would be helpful to ships in fog or stormy weather, since at the present time the only signals the fishermen can pick up are those from the U.S. Coast Guard stations.

Of the two lifeboats maintained by the federal government in his constituency, the one at Tofino was in fair condition but the one at Bamfield, now 40 years old, had been condemned a few years ago, and was absolutely unfit for service as a lifeboat.

"I know this is a federal matter, but the lives of our fishermen and those who go down to the sea in ships should have all the protection that can be given them," he said.

Sales Tax Changes Would Be Made If C.C.F. Gained Power

The C.C.F. if it gains control of the Provincial government would not abolish the sales tax but would retain it on "luxuries" and on industry and would take a larger share from the resources of the province.

This was made clear by Opposition Leader Harold E. Winch as he opened the budget debate in the Legislature Monday afternoon.

"The C.C.F. maintained that with surpluses, with the hold-backs of 1941 and 1948, with the productive wealth of the province, that a revenue equivalent to that raised by the sales tax could be provided without taking the money out of the pockets of the poor," said Mr. Winch.

The sales tax was an expression of the ideology of capitalism and tourism, he claimed. It was a tax not on the natural resources but on the income of the working people.

While Finance Minister Herbert Anscomb had maintained that the tax was not levied on necessities, Mr. Winch claimed it was.

"I wonder how long the Attorney-General would let him (Mr. Anscomb) go around without clothes," said Mr. Winch. He contended the sales tax should be withdrawn from clothing, household supplies, shoes and footwear, hardware and meals.

Mr. Winch also scored Mr. Anscomb's statement that the tax was not regressive.

"The government is trying to cover up the nasty taste of the sales tax by talk that it's for social services and old age pensioners," he said.

CITES SASKATCHEWAN

As an example of how the taxes on the resources of the province could be developed, Mr. Winch cited the case of Saskatchewan. While that province had but one major mining-smelting development at Flin Flon, compared to the numerous such developments in B.C., and while B.C.'s mineral production was 300 to 400 per cent of that of Saskatchewan, B.C.'s mining tax produced only $1,000,000, compared to $1,227,000 collected from the Hudson's Bay Mining and Smelting Company at Flin Flon, said Mr. Winch.

Yet the Flin Flon development was not nearly as big as the biggest operation in B.C., that of the Consolidated Mining and Smelting Co. of Canada Ltd. at Trail.

Mr. Winch noted the "truly remarkable" low estimates of revenue by the government in past years and questioned the authority of the government to place $5,000,000 from the Dominion government's tax payments in suspense account without action of the Legislature.

"I maintain this did not give and does not give a correct financial picture," he said.

He maintained also that Mr. Anscomb had misdirected the Legislature in 1947 because he knew that only three payments would be made by the federal government while he had budgeted for four.

Actually, Mr. Winch maintained, the government's surpluses were pretty close to $10,000,000 for the 1947-48 fiscal year.

FORECASTS JUNE ELECTION

The budget, claimed Mr. Winch, would permit the government to waive a $210,000,000 plan before the electors for the election.

Wants Port Alberni Surveyed For Location Of Steel Industry

James Mowat, Coalition, Alberni, reporting Port Alberni the most favorable location on the Pacific coast for a steel industry, called on the Provincial government Monday to survey ores and water power potentials to aid such a development.

Speaking in the Legislature in the budget debate, Mr. Mowat said he knew of no place that could meet all the requirements of a steel industry as well as Port Alberni. He mentioned that power from the John Hart Development at Campbell River and harbor facilities were available and there were large iron deposits close by.

"We have the iron ore of the highest grade, and lime, coal and power at our doorstep," he said.

MAIN BORIES OF IRON ORE

"Iron ore lies at Kildonan Harbor, Sechart and Zebalos," he continued. "These are the main bodies. All of these properties have some development carried out, and there are other bodies that have never been surveyed."

"The amount of lime of the very highest quality lying in great beds at Kildonan, Sechart and Headquarters, and on the west side of Horne Lake, is in large quantities and both the lime and ore can be literally shoveled into boats or scows."

"Coal lies across the hump at Sable River, just a stone's throw from our back door, and in my own bailiwick of Port Alberni there is an undeveloped coal field with three seams of coal, and this government has reports on this field."

Mr. Mowat also called on the government to develop the proposed road from Alberni to Comox Road, claiming it would open up a large agriculture district.

While directing most of his fire against Mr. Anscomb and the treasury benches, Mr. Winch did single out Mrs. Nancy Hodges, Coalition, Victoria, to challenge her attack on the Saskatchewan auto insurance plan.

He said that for a 1932 Ford private insurance companies in Saskatchewan would charge $18 to provide the same coverage as given by the government's plan for $4.50, and for a 1947 Buick the private firms' charge would be $37 while the government's premium was $10.

Mr. Winch said that Mrs. Hodges' speech in places was taken almost word for word from a publication of B.C. insurance firms which had come to his hands since she spoke.

"I hope we don't have any more misinformation on coverage," he said.

When Arthur J. R. Ash, Coalition, Saanich, asked Mr. Winch if the C.C.F. could provide the same service in B.C. at the same cost, Mr. Winch said the C.C.F. had never maintained this. The rates under a government scheme here, he said, would be less than the private firms' rates as in Saskatchewan.

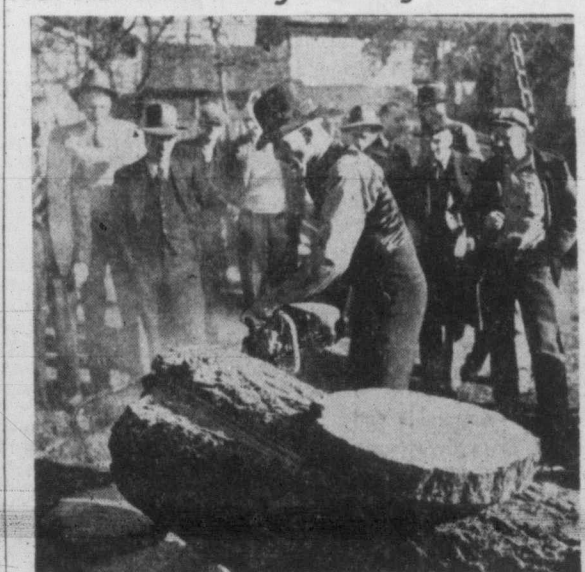

Rights Sought For Ex-Civil Servants

Free hospitalization and other privileges granted old age pensioners should be made available to retired civil servants living on small pensions, James Mowat, Coalition, Alberni, said in the Legislature Monday.

He stressed that this was especially necessary because of the high cost of living.

"Many have given long years of faithful service, and I hope that help will be given them," he said.

New Hornet Power Saw Revolutionizes Log Cutting

The revolutionary new Hornet Gasoline Power Chain Saw was put through its paces Saturday in the Victoria yard of B.C. Roofers & Agencies, who are dealers for Victoria. This new saw weighs only 35 lbs. and has been designed to fell and buck logs from 16 inches to 36 inches. The saw is easily operated even by inexperienced operators and provides a striking contrast from old-fashioned methods of cutting logs by hand. A big crowd turned out and witnessed the interesting display and inspected the component parts of this amazing small chain saw which were also described by Mr. Clay, Hornet representative for Vancouver Island.

Says U.S.-Britain Sabotaged Work Of United Nations

MOSCOW (Reuter)—The official Communist newspaper, Pravda, in a review of world affairs Monday, accused Britain and the United States of having "sabotaged" the work of the United Nations Commission on conventional armaments during the two years since it was formed.

"The British and American delegations have gone to any lengths to find pretexts to prove the 'impossibility' of reducing armaments and the prohibition of the atomic weapon," it said.

Referring to a United States proposal that an information centre run by the Security Council should gather, check and publish information about armed forces and armaments (not atomic bombs) of United Nations members, the article said the "underhand" game played by the Anglo-American bloc was "more than evident."

"Deliberately concealing information on the atomic weapon, it said, 'they want at the same time to have an opportunity of collecting, through United Nations intelligence, information on the armed forces of all the countries of the world and, primarily, of the Soviet Union and the peoples' democracies.'"

They planned to use the information thus obtained to "further their schemes of instigating another war," the newspaper said.

Imperialists are watching American activities with obvious anxiety. Experience in connection with the western bloc has clearly shown that the United States will not yield domination to anyone, and in particular not to Britain.

"The controversies among the imperialistic powers, however, do not change the aim of the Mediterranean bloc. There is not the slightest doubt that the aim is the same as that of the Atlantic Pact."

Sooke Community To Hold Social And Art Exhibition

SOOKE—Sooke residents are taking a lively interest in art. The Community Association is sponsoring the third art exhibition to be held in Sooke on March 5, from 2 in the afternoon to 10 in the evening in the dining room of the Community Hall.

The exhibition will include watercolor sketches of wild fowl by Robert Taylor, flower studies by Mrs. Rupert Soule, and paintings of Miss Gladys Grainger, J. Laing, T. S. Stott and P. W. Taylor.

A social meeting will also be held in conjunction with the exhibition. Six of the paintings will be set aside for the tombola prize.

The event will enable friends to meet, and new residents to become acquainted with the accomplishments of the Sooke Community Association. Members are seeking to raise funds to complete their hall.

Tea will be served to all those present from 3 to 5 and 7 to 9. Price of admission to the exhibition and social is one dollar. For persons under 18 the charge is 50 cents.

Alberni Group Asks Forest Act Changes

PORT ALBERNI—A planned economy, but not a controlled one, is necessary for the maintenance of private enterprise, Benjamin F. Wright said in moving a resolution calling for amendment of the Forest Act at the Alberni district Liberal Association annual meeting here.

"It is incumbent upon us that we guarantee equal opportunity," Mr. Wright said.

A number of requests were made in the resolution including: That where situations existed as outlined in the preamble, title of lands upon which logging highways were constructed remain vested in the Crown in the right of the province; that before permission to construct a logging road was granted, a survey of the proposed route be made and the estimated cost be submitted and agreed upon;

That a cruise be made of timber involved and the ownership ascertained of each adjacent license, berth or lease.

Woman Faces Trial On Illegal Baby Adoption Charges

NEW YORK (CP)—A former Montreal woman was charged Monday with operating an illegal baby-adoption business on a wholesale scale.

Mrs. Alice R. P. Satterthwaite, 56, a former social worker who said she had come here from Montreal in 1926, pleaded innocent to the charges today and was out on $500 bail.

Frank S. Hogan, New York district attorney, said she "placed out for adoption hundreds of babies in the last four or five years." He said she had transported some of them by plane.

She was named in informations which alleged conspiracy to violate the state social welfare law, violation of that law, and second-degree perjury growing out of a false affidavit allegedly signed in an adoption case.

The welfare law does not allow anyone except an authorized person or agency to board out children for adoption.

Hogan said she had placed about 60 babies in a two-month period in 1946. He said many persons who got the babies had been rejected by approved social-welfare agencies.

She made almost all arrangements by mail in many cases and then took infants by plane to distant points, Hogan said.

Hogan said Mrs. Satterthwaite often housed expectant mothers at her six-room Fifth Avenue apartment in Manhattan, giving them care while arranging for adoption of their babies.

Langford Guides Awarded Badges

LANGFORD—Girl Guide Thinking Week was observed by the Langford Guides when they were hostesses to their parents at the home of Mr. and Mrs. F. Freeman, Peath Lane.

A play entitled "The Fourth Princess" was given by the girls and several camp fire songs were sung.

Refreshments were prepared and served by the Guides. Those who qualified for their hostess badge were: Carole Eveleigh, Francis Jeffery, Carol Borde, Arlene McLaren, Sheila Goodman, Maxine Fraser, Lorraine Ranty and Daphne McLaren. Mrs. H. Ranty was the examiner.

Langford Appoints Delegates To Guide Provincial Meeting

LANGFORD—At a meeting of the Langford Association of Girl Guides, Mrs. H. Ranty, Mrs. D. V. Eveleigh and Mrs. M. Robertson were appointed delegates to the provincial annual conference to be held in Victoria March 11 and 12.

It was announced that "Cookie Week" will be from April 23 to 30.

New members present were Mrs. G. Finlay and Mrs. W. J. Albin. The next meeting will be held at the home of Mrs. Ranty, Island Highway, March 30.

Alberni Liberals Re-elect O'Brien

PORT ALBERNI—Members of the Alberni District Liberal Association re-elected Dennis O'Brien, president, at the annual meeting here.

Others elected were: J. V. Hills and James McBride, vice-presidents; Ted Vrooman, secretary; G. H. Gilroy-Moore, Archie Fleming, H. J. K. Housser, Benjamin F. Wright, Arnold Trethewey, Clifford Lee, Edward Hoffman and A. G. McCulloch, executive committee.

Probability of a provincial election this year was discussed and members decided to form a young Liberal group in Alberni Valley. The meeting criticized Finance Minister Anscomb for letters outlining accomplishments of the Progressive Conservative Party.

Priests Sentenced By Polish Tribunal

WARSAW, Poland (AP)—Two Roman Catholic priests, Rev. Kazimierz Fertak and Rev. Wiktor Lubinski, were sentenced to 15 and four years' imprisonment, respectively, Monday by a military tribunal. They were charged with urging members of an underground band to kill Communists and other supporters of the Warsaw government.

Responsibility Of Forests Job For All, Forester Says

"I look upon the forest resources of B.C. as an estate," John Collins of the B.C. Forest Service told members of the Gyro Club at a luncheon at the Empress Hotel Monday.

"The owners of an estate manage it so as to get the best results and try to keep it in good condition. In the same way, we should know more about our forests. This large estate is not just the responsibility of the B.C. Forest Service. It is up to each one of us to see that it is managed properly and produces to its fullest extent," he said.

Since 1916, the forest branch has been taking an inventory of the 366,000 square miles of forests in B.C. and it is a never-ending job. All the best information has been centralized to make a pictorial map.

The forestry service employed aerial, ground and industrial surveys to gather data.

In addition to the central office, there are five district forestry offices in the province, from which the 82 forest rangers work.

"What we have got to do is to think of the future and to do that, we must have good management. This will have an important bearing on other industries such as fishing, game, tourist centres and fur-bearing animals," Mr. Collins concluded.

Wage Increases For 8,000,000 Workers In Britain Last Year

LONDON (CP)—Wage rates in Britain continued to rise in 1948 despite repeated efforts of the Labor government to apply a check.

By the end of the year nearly 8,000,000 persons—more than one-third of the working population—had been given wage increases. The country's overall payroll went up by £1,890,000 ($7,560,000) a week.

Most observers expect the pressure to continue in 1949. When trade unions accepted the government's wage stabilization policy last year it was on the condition that prices would remain steady, too. There has been a considerable rise in the cost of living since the last round of pay increases.

The minimum wage for farm workers is almost certain to be raised soon from the present £4 10s. Miners and railway workers are among other groups who are hopeful of getting a further boost.

The largest industry to benefit in 1948 was shipbuilding and metal engineering. More than 2,575,000 workers got raises exceeding £640,000 a week.

Most of the increases were for a flat figure. Some however were hitched to the cost-of-living index—when it rose, pay packets were bigger; when it fell, they shrank.

Mostly the trend was upward. The index—which many trade unionists regard with suspicion—is based on 100 for June, 1947. It stood at 104 in January, 1948, rose to 110 in June, dropped two points when cheaper potatoes flooded the market in July, and climbed back to 109 in November.

During 1948 trade unions diminished their demands for a shorter working week. In 1946 and 1947 some 7,350,000 persons went on shorter time. Last year only 600,000 had their hours reduced, mostly to the average of 44 or 45 hours.

Total manpower employed at the end of the year was 20,328,000, compared with 20,430,000 at the end of 1947. The register of unemployed stood at 350,000.

Times Picture Finds Owners Of Lost Film

It didn't take long for the losers of a roll of film to identify one of the prints which was reproduced in the Saturday issue of the Victoria Daily Times.

The photograph which appeared in the editorial page, depicted an interesting study of wildlife—a picture of a moose against a background of rugged mountains.

The owners of the roll of film are Mr. and Mrs. H. C. Blunt, operators of the Akiskinook resort, Windermere, B.C. They lost two rolls of films wrapped in an envelope. Only one roll was found by a citizen who turned it into the Department of Transport, which in turn gave it to a member of the Victoria Times.

The owners are most anxious to recover the other film. The picture of the moose was taken when the couple were driving near Banff.

IN ALL-FRENCH PROGRAM—Final rehearsals are being held by students of Victoria College, who will be seen Friday night in the school auditorium in an all-French concert starting at 8.15. First part of the program will be musical. The second will be a one-act comedy. Cast of the play is shown in the picture, left to right: Douglas McHugh, Jean Heley, Eileen Graham, Gordon Young, Alan Dainard and Dan Levy.

Antarctic Expedition Will Try To Learn If World Growing Warmer

By ASTLEY HAWKINS
LONDON (Reuters)—The Norwegian-Swedish-British expedition preparing to leave for the Antarctic late this year will try to find out whether the world is getting warmer.

Holes will be bored in glaciers to measure their depth and study their history. Observations will be made on any glacial shrinkage conforming to a remarkable decrease in Arctic ice conditions noted in recent years.

Out of such tests international scientists with the expedition will try to forecast the global climate of the future.

LOOK FOR MINERALS

If geologists find traces of coal or other commercially valuable deposits beneath the barren frozen wastes, possibilities may be seen of life and industry developing on the Antarctic mainland.

Plans already are under way in the three contributing countries for the expedition, to be carried to the Antarctic by a Norwegian seal-hunting ship. Joint conferences have been held and equipment approved.

The 14 men of the expedition will spend nearly two years in Queen Maud Land in the Norwegian segment of the Antarctic, due south from Capetown.

Main area to be explored is the Alpine interior of Queen Maud Land, never before trodden by man and only known by aerial photographs from previous explorations.

Norway is bearing most of the cost and organization of the expedition, with smaller contributions of money and men from Sweden and Britain. But each country will pool its experience and finest equipment to send the party off as the best equipped

Her life is in YOUR hands

A mother in hospital has just given birth to a baby boy. Only one thing can save her life—a blood transfusion. Fortunately, a supply of blood of the right type is made available by the Red Cross to save the lives of this mother and other mothers in childbirth—and to save the lives of accident victims.

But the Red Cross must have funds to support this Free Blood Transfusion Service, which is being extended as rapidly as possible to cover all Canada. It is YOUR Red Cross which is carrying on this splendid work. It is supported by you and thousands of other Canadians.

Right now, the life of a mother in hospital somewhere, is in your hands.

The Red Cross asks your help, too, in supplying aid to crippled veterans, in supporting Outpost Hospitals, in sending relief wherever disaster strikes, in giving life to suffering humanity everywhere.

Your continued support is urgently needed to carry on and extend this great work. Give willingly, generously! Give now!

Red Cross services also include: Treatment for Crippled Children, Nutrition Services, First Aid and Home Nursing Courses, Swimming and Water Safety, Women's Work Activities, etc.

When considering your donation, remember that this year the Canadian Red Cross needs $5 Million Dollars—40% more than the previous appeal.

Spring Flowers The Setting For Wedding At St. Matthias

Daffodils, tulips and iris formed the setting, Saturday evening at St. Matthias' Church for the wedding of Barbara Anne Gibbs, only daughter of Mr. and Mrs. G. J. Carr, 1415 Ryan Street, and William Reginald Craven, eldest son of Mr. and Mrs. William A. Craven, 2396 Heron Street.

Rev. K. L. Sandercock officiated at the ceremony. A Partington played organ interludes, and while the register was being signed, Miss Carol Richardson sang "O Perfect Love."

White satin, fashioned with long sleeves, embroidered sweetheart neckline and full skirt sweeping into a graceful train, was chosen by the bride for her wedding gown. A Princess Elizabeth headdress held the floor-length veil and her cascade bouquet was of white and red roses and carnations. She was given in marriage by her father.

Bridal attendants were Miss Beryl Coates, maid of honor, in a full-skirted rose taffeta gown with mauve flower headpiece, and Miss Lydia McMurtrie, bridesmaid, wearing mauve tulle with rose-toned floral headpiece. They both carried Colonial bouquets in harmonizing shades.

Robert J. Craven stood with his brother as best man, and ushers were Douglas Pear and Irving Young.

A reception was held at the home of the bride, where the bridal party stood beneath a large white bell, flanked by standard baskets of spring flowers.

Mrs. Carr, gowned in wine crepe with matching hat and gardenia corsage bouquet, and Mrs. Craven, in powder blue crepe with black hat and pink rosebuds en corsage, assisted the young couple in receiving 125 guests.

A three-tier wedding cake, surrounded with pink tulle dotted with white and mauve freesias and lighted by tall white candles in silver holders, centred the refreshment table. Walter Sylvester proposed the toast to the bride.

The young couple left on the midnight boat for the mainland, en route to Spokane and from there to Cranbrook, where they will make their future home.

Mrs. Craven traveled in a Kelly green gabardine suit with brown squirrel coat, brown accessories, and a corsage bouquet of Tallis-mum roses.

Mrs. Shanks Again Heads Auxiliary

Returned to office at the annual meeting held recently in Prince Robert House, Mrs. R. J. Shanks, will head the Women's Auxiliary to the Navy League of Canada for another year.

Other officers are Mrs. W. A. Mawdsley, first vice-president; Mrs. T. C. Davis, second vice-president; Mrs. L. A. Lucas, secretary; Mrs. J. A. Nobbs, treasurer; Mrs. J. A. Brown, boys and sea cadets; Mrs. A. J. Shipley, parcels; Mrs. M. Stone, hospital; Mrs. Mawdsley, wool; Mrs. Lucas, social, and Mrs. T. Fulthrop, press.

Councillors named were Mesdames M. Whittier, M. Stone and J. Davies.

Mrs. Shanks presided at the meeting and reports were given by Mrs. Lucas and Mrs. Nobbs.

Letters of thanks were received for food parcels sent to Britain, for donations to sea cadets and Prince Robert House and for woolen comforts sent to various boys.

Mrs. Harrison was welcomed as a new member.

Cwacs' Reunion

TORONTO (CP)—More than 1,500 former members of the Canadian Women's Army Corps are expected here June 11-12 for the first major C.W.A.C. reunion since the end of the Second World War.

Doris Flak, Dale Bradley Married At Fairfield Church

The marriage of Doris Jean Flak, daughter of Mrs. Ruth Boyle, Ashcroft, B.C., and Robert Wardale "Dale" Bradley, only son of Mr. and Mrs. A. W. Bradley, 1776 Rockland Avenue, Victoria, took place last Saturday evening in Fairfield United Church at 8 o'clock.

Rev. William Allan performed the ceremony in a setting of pink tulips, blue iris and daffodils.

The bride, given in marriage by A. M. Clearhugh, was an attractive picture in her period-style gown of white brocade satin with stand-up collar, finished with seed pearls, form-fitting bodice and full skirt caught in a bustle. False sleeves of the same material fell in lily-points over the hands. An illusion net veil, floor-length, was held with a coronet embroidered with pearls.

The shower bouquet was of red roses and white freesias and her only jewelry was the groom's gift, a double strand of pearls, which had belonged to his great-grandmother.

There were three attendants. Mrs. E. W. Gray, matron of honor, wore peach satin; Miss Penny Martin and Miss Audrey Imrie, turquoise and Nile green respectively. All wore small hats trimmed with pastel flowers matching shoulder veils and long mitts in the same shades. Mrs. Gray carried blue iris and peach carnations and the bridesmaids loose Colonial bouquets of freesias, roses and carnations.

Cameron Cross was the best man and A. W. Carter and Terry Grimm, the ushers. Soloist during the signing of the register and at the reception was Miss Madonna McCabe.

Mrs. Boyle and Mrs. Bradley assisted the young couple in welcoming guests at the reception in the banquet hall at Strathcona Hotel, following the ceremony.

The refreshment table was centred with a three-tier wedding cake, topped with a miniature bride and groom, and flanked with vases of spring flowers and lighted candles. Mr. Clearhugh proposed the bride's toast.

At present the young couple are motoring to southern California on their honeymoon. Mrs. Bradley traveling in a hunter's green gabardine suit with matching topcoat, gold colored accessories with carnations en corsage.

On their return they will live in Victoria.

Former President's Wife Speaks On Work Of United Nations

WINNIPEG—Agencies of the United Nations organization have done "very good things" despite the fact "we've never had a peaceful world since the end of the (Second World) war," Mrs. Eleanor Roosevelt said Monday night.

The idea behind the U.N. was that it would help maintain an atmosphere in the world in which the peace would grow and be stabilized; the making of peace still was the business of the nations which fought the war.

Mrs. Roosevelt, addressing a capacity audience of approximately 4,500 persons in the Civic Auditorium here under the auspices of B'nai B'rith and the Hillel Cultural Forum of the University of Manitoba, discussed "the accomplishments and failures of U.N."

She was introduced by Mrs. R. F. McWilliams, wife of the Lieutenant-Governor of Manitoba, as the spokesman for "those who cannot speak effectively for themselves" and a devoted worker in the economic and social sections of the U.N.

WIDE EXPERIENCE Mrs. Roosevelt said she had been on every one of the United States delegations to the U.N. and on the Human Rights Commission.

There was a feeling the U.N. was "just a debating society." "It is quite clear its failure lies in the realm of political questions which it has not been able to settle. It was never set up to handle that sort of question except in rare cases."

The U.S. and the Soviet Union had never been able to agree on the control of atomic energy, the kind of inspection which would merit the confidence of all peoples that undertakings given were being carried out, or what kind of force should be given the U.N.

Marriage A Problem For London Students

LONDON (CP)—Every day Mrs. Leslie Shirlaw has to advise young students at London University not to marry.

Several times a week she must say to a student and his wife: "Don't have children yet. If you do, you may be lucky to get a garret."

There are two folders at "Heartbreak House"—the name given to London University Lodgings Bureau—telling of the plight of hundreds of students and their wives living in London County Council rest camps in gas-lit, single rooms and a squalid tenements.

"For many married couples living on the government grant of £360 ($1,440) a year the position is absolutely desperate," Mrs. Shirlaw said.

"We have 4,000 names of people on our files who are prepared to take in students, but when I hear of a couple of rooms to let in an attic, the married students almost fight for them."

"If a student's wife tells her landlady she is expecting a child it nearly always means a request that she should find other accommodation."

St. John Ambulance Nursing Division Has Anniversary

Fashions from the Renaissance period until the present day, illustrated by doll models dressed in the period represented, had a first showing in this city in the "Pageant of Fashions" at the 11th anniversary celebration of St. John Ambulance Nursing Division headquarters, Monday evening. Miss Wolfrey acted as commentary on the styles during the showing.

Individual cakes, lighted with birthday candles, coffee and sandwiches were served later in the evening.

Victoria Nursing Division, No. 61, St. John Ambulance Brigade, was first organized in 1938 by 21 women who held first aid and home nursing certificates. Dr. T. W. A. Gray was divisional surgeon; Mrs. Emily V. Harwood, nursing sister; Mrs. Grace Thorne, divisional superintendent, and Mrs. E. L. Rogers, ambulance officer.

Now in 1949, five members of the original 21 are still on active duty. Mrs. E. V. Harwood is corps superintendent; Mrs. E. L. Rogers, corps officer; Mrs. Mabel Sampson, cadet superintendent; Mrs. Clara Birkett, divisional storekeeper and Miss Marion Bell, who for many years was divisional secretary.

Membership has climbed through the years, and it now totals over 200, 58 of whom have been active members for from five to 10 years.

Using the Central Building on Government Street as their meeting place in their first year, the rooms became a hive of activity as members made both roller and triangle hand-made bandages and meetings were held weekly.

Four years later, in 1942, membership had increased to such an extent that new quarters had to be found to accommodate the larger groups and the 120 members were divided into two divisions.

In that year the nursing corps was organized, and Mrs. W. P. D. Pemberton was made corps superintendent and Mrs. Harwood corps officer. Mrs. Rogers was appointed superintendent of the Victoria Nursing Division, No. 61, and Miss Harrison became superintendent of Denton Holmes Nursing Division No. 148.

Of the six nursing divisions and three cadet divisions formed during the busy war years, five nursing divisions and cadet divisions, now rated among the best in Canada, are still active.

CURE FOR MARITAL ILLS

The one untangling remedy for an unhappy marriage is soft soap. Apply plenty of that on the sore spots and a cure is guaranteed. Try this faithfully for 30 days and if it doesn't work you can get your money back and a handsome divorce certificate framed in gold.

You see, the trouble with most married couples who cannot get along with each other is that they don't know what ails them, nor why they disagree so badly with each other. The husband knows that his wife is a noble, Christian woman who is a conscientious mother and a good cook. The wife appreciates that her husband possesses all of the domestic virtues, and then some. They know they should live together in peace and harmony, but instead of that they are in perpetual brawls.

They have tried all sorts of nostrums for this soul sickness without getting any results. But no matter how many good resolutions they make they still get in each other's hair. Every word is the fighting word, and their friends moan over them and say isn't it just too bad that Johnny's and Mary's marriage is such a failure.

CRAVE APPRECIATION

Now, unhappy marriages are as plentiful as pig-tracks, and most of them come from the same cause. But, curiously enough, few of those afflicted with the ailment ever seem to realize what their trouble is, or to do anything to cure it. For what's the matter with 99 out of 100 disgruntled husbands and wives is that they are simply starving for flattery, for appreciation and being fussed over.

Every man baits his hook with sweet talk when he goes a-courting. He tells the girl he wants how beautiful and wonderful and intelligent and fascinating she is, for he knows well enough that she wouldn't have him on a bet if he dwelt upon her faults and defects.

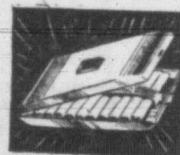

But that same man, after he is married, may never pay his wife a compliment or show in any way that he appreciates all the hard work she does to make him a comfortable home. Many a great lover turns into a champion fault-finder before the honeymoon is even over.

BUTTER EACH OTHER

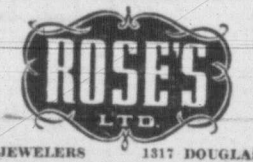

And many women treat the men whom they are married to exactly the same starvation diet. They take all of the hard work and the sacrifices that their husbands make, to give them comforts and luxuries, without ever so much as saying "thank you." Instead of praise they hand their husbands knocks and feel themselves defrauded because their milk coats are not sable.

London Market

LONDON (Reuters)—Slightly lower prices were established in most sections of the London Stock Exchange when the trading period of account came to an end.

Interest was maintained in the week-end and wireless issues, following the week-end announcement of the take-over of the British government.

Small declines were shown by many of the industrial groups, including iron and steel, breweries and building shares, as the result of a little and account realising.

Gay Irish Romance Opens At Dominion

Take a liberal quantity of racy dialogue, three famous stars and four well-known supports; take plenty of farcical situations, romance and a full measure of Irish blarney, mix well, engage a slick cutter and you have "Spring Meeting," the gayest and most entertaining comedy drama seen on the screen for many a day.

"Spring Meeting," now at the Dominion Theatre, stars Nova Pilbeam, Basil Sydney and Henry Edwards, with Sarah Churchill (daughter of the popular Rt. Hon. Winston Churchill).

ROYAL THEATRE

A great motion picture achieves perfection through the talents of its stars and the excellence of its scenes. In "The Paradine Case," now at the Royal Theatre, Gregory Peck, Ann Todd, Charles Coburn, Charles Laughton, Ethel Barrymore, Luis Jourdan and Valli are starred.

Movie Cliches Give June Havoc Ideas For Eastern U.S. Tour

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—Movie clichés—those time-worn bits of action and dialogue we see over and over again in films—are due for a beating from June Havoc.

Blonde June, whose acting has brightened such films as "Gentleman's Agreement" and "When My Baby Smiles at Me," is hitting the road. In her straw hat, she will tour straw hat theatres in the eastern United States with programs of singing and dancing and a new edition of "Rain," which she recently played here with success.

June, whose sister, Gypsy Rose Lee, has toured with a carnival show in the south, plans to make a trailer to precede her appearances. In it she will spoof the movie clichés of movie-dom.

HER PROGRAM

1. Historical significance dept.: A 17th-century beauty dances at a gay party. Suddenly she stops and asks her partner, "Do you hear thunder?" he says no.

"What is that dirty little village over there?" she asks.

"Waterloo," is the answer.

2. Heated romance dept.: Close-up of a man's shoulder of a beauty who looks up at him with lipped eyes. As her nostrils dilate, he murmurs, "You are fire in my veins." Fade-out.

3. Understated pathos dept.: A richly-gowned woman stands alone with the shadow of the guillotine in the background. The crash of the blade is heard and the woman turns, of the drums. A dirty arm hands her a black mask. She accepts it, raises an arm and utters, "For France."

HEROICS AND DRAMA

4. Western heroics dept.: The hero enters the saloon, strides down the length of the bar as the drinkers eye him and duck out of sight. Finally, he confronts the dance hall queen and draws, "I've hunted all over the panhandle for you, Lily, to see that you get what's coming to you."

Close-up of Lily firing a pistol directly into camera.

5. Backstage drama dept.: I offered this one. It shows the male star of the show and the young understudy for the female star, who has just broken a leg. She hangs onto the railing of the circular staircase and frets, "I'm scared; I don't think I can do it."

He eyes her sternly and announces, "Tonight—you are the star."

June added that in her years in show business she has never known the understudy to take over from the star and score a hit.

ODEON THEATRE

"Scott of the Antarctic," now being shown at the Odeon Theatre, had one of the toughest locations ever undertaken by a British film unit. It was at Finse, Norway—by a strange coincidence, the place where Scott took his motor sledges to test them before the original expedition.

All five actors playing the doomed party who made the final bid for the South Pole were there: John Mills playing Captain Scott, Harold Warrender as Wilson, Derek Bond as Oates, Reginald Beckwith as Bowers and James Robertson as Justice as Evans.

Finse itself, watershed of the Oslo-Bergen railway, was the unit's headquarters, but filming took place on the Hardangerfjord, 6,000 feet above sea-level. Temperatures ranged from three above to 20 below zero.

ROYAL—"The Paradine Case," starring Gregory Peck and Ann Todd.

CAPITOL THEATRE

They had a line-up at Twentieth Century-Fox, during the filming of "Chicken Every Sunday." But director George Seaton was looking for anachronisms, not criminals.

The picture, which stars Dan Dailey and Celeste Holm, now at the Capitol Theatre, is set in the early 1900's. Seaton explained that he couldn't take a chance on anything spoiling the accuracy of the scene.

Inspecting the group, the director insisted that women scrape off all nail polish, rub off lipstick and rouge.

All racing forms, wrist watches and horn-rimmed glasses were banned before the cameras were allowed to grind.

Smelter Workers To Seek Higher Wages

KIMBERLEY, B.C. (CP)—Representatives of the International Mine, Mill and Smelter Workers' Union (I.M.S.W.U.) disclosed Monday the Consolidated Mining and Smelting Company and International Nickel will be asked for wage increases this year.

The announcement followed a week-end meeting by the union's national wage policy and bargaining committee, jointly representing Trail, B.C., Kimberley and Calgary. Ontario delegates also were present.

John Clark of Chicago, International president, said Monday "wage increases, more liberalized vacations, added welfare benefits and other additions or changes in the present contract" would be sought.

The program, he said, would be presented to locals for ratification before details are disclosed.

ATLAS THEATRE

If you've ever had a hunch that something was going to happen (and who hasn't?)—and it did—then you will be able to put yourself in the shoes of a man whose life took a tragic turn because his hunches came too frequently and too accurately. That man is the key figure of Paramount's mystery thriller, "Night Has a Thousand Eyes," which is now at the Atlas Theatre. He is brilliantly portrayed by Edward G. Robinson, who gives the most wonderful characterization of his career as the honest, bewildered and frightened man suddenly confronted with the realization that he can foretell the future.

Joe Louis Resigns Crown; Will Sponsor Title Fight

MIAMI BEACH, Fla. (AP)—Joe Louis today formally resigned as heavyweight boxing champion of the world. He requested and received permission from the National Boxing Association to sponsor a fight between Ezzard Charles and Jersey Joe Walcott to determine the new world's champion.

The new champion will be crowned at a 15-round fight to be held in Chicago in June.

Louis submitted his formal resignation by letter to N.B.A. Commissioner Abe J. Greene and Flamen B. Adae, president of N.B.A.

The letter of resignation was presented by Harry Mendel, the Brown Bomber's publicity agent. Louis himself was not present.

Louis notified the N.B.A. that he, Arthur M. Wirtz and James D. Norris had formed the International Boxing Club, which will maintain offices in New York and Chicago. It will stage the fight to determine the new heavyweight champion.

Louis said he had obtained the signatures of Walcott and Charles for the heavyweight crown match and that both boxers had agreed to defend their title within 90 days after the June match with either Lee Savold or Gus Lesnevich.

SECOND RETIREMENT

This is the second time in a year that Louis has retired, the first being under somewhat less formal circumstances. Before his 25th successful defence of his title against Jersey Joe Walcott in Yankee Stadium, June 25, the champion said that he was through, and the fight with Walcott was his last.

But on Sept. 27, he said he "might" fight again. The Twentieth Century Sporting Club, which has acted as promoter for all of Louis' fights, has proceeded on the assumption he would defend his title again in Yankee Stadium this summer.

Louis has been appearing in a series of exhibitions all over the country. "I am certain you know how sorry I must be to let the championship go this way," Louis said in his letter to Greene.

"I have held it for a long time and I won it in the ring. I expected to lose it the same way I won it. This is the way champions should be made."

"However, things have developed so that I think I ought to stick to the decision to retire that I announced some time ago."

"I am sending you another letter in more detail just what I plan to do in boxing in the future."

It was signed: "With best wishes, Joe Louis."

Marchildon Signs With Philadelphia

WEST PALM BEACH, Fla. (CP)—Connie Mack announced today he has signed Phil Marchildon of Penetanguishene, Ont., for the 1949 season.

As Philadelphia Athletics of the American League began spring drills here, Mack said the signing of the Canadian left-handed pitcher and two other players left only one Athletic unsigned.

The holdout is Coaker Triplett, outfielder who set the batting pace for the International League last year with Buffalo Bisons.

Marchildon, 27, is a right-handed pitcher who has been with the Athletics since 1946. He has a record of 10-10 with a 2.40 ERA.

He was born in Penetanguishene, Ont., and played for the team for three years. He was a member of the Canadian national team in 1947.

VICTORIA UNITED SOCCER club officials can thank the Coast League for costing them what would likely have been one of their best attendances of the season last Saturday. Conditions were perfect for a match but the mainland bosses claimed they couldn't get a team to come over. With the league schedule all but wrecked owing to weather and ground conditions the United can't afford to pass up such opportunities.

As it is, the Victoria club has only one month of play remaining in Athletic Park before the groundkeepers take over to get the enclosure ready for the opening of another pro baseball season. Of course it is possible the soccer interests may sneak another odd date or two in the park during April.

BRITISH SPORT really goes overboard when it comes to paying tribute to an athlete. Note where the organizers of the Denis Compton cricket benefit this year have set themselves the high target of £20,000 and there is a good chance the total will be nearer £25,000—all free of tax. It will not be just the tribute of Middlesex, his own county. Response to the initial plans indicates that subscriptions will pour in on a nationwide scale never equalled in British sport. Apart from the actual county cricket benefit games, scores of smaller matches will be played on Sundays during the summer. West End theatres plan shows specially for Compton's benefit.

THERE IS EVERY indication Compton will rival Henry Cotton as the richest man in British sport. Since he was in his late teens he has had double pay all the year round—a retainer from cricket in the winter and wages from the Arsenal Football Club during the summer, plus a football benefit, which, strangely, is subject to tax. Compton has also derived big money from the use of his name in advertising and for articles in books and newspapers. He is only 31, which means he can go on playing cricket—if not football—for several years and duly qualify for another benefit.

GLANCING AT THE individual scoring list of the National Hockey League it is hard to believe Chicago Black Hawks are down in fifth place in the circuit. Of the first five positions, Chicago players hold four of them, with another Black Hawk, Bud Bodnar, tied for sixth. Among the top five Roy Conacher, Doug Bentley, Jim Conacher and Bill Mosienko blanket the field with the veteran Sid Abel of Detroit the only outsider able to crash the party.

Roy Conacher has scored the most goals and Bentley has the greatest number of assists. Just goes to show that a hockey team has to have something more than a good offence.

REGULAR MONTHLY meeting of the British Columbia Automotive Sports Association will be held Thursday evening at 8 in the British Public Schools Club. All owners and drivers are asked to attend.

JUNIOR BUTTON GOLF R. Fleming and C. Merriman of Gore Vale Golf Club won Sunday's city junior golf button match over L. Carroll and D. V. Fanthorpe by 3 and 1. Winners had a best ball of 75, losers 78.

New Members Of Victoria A's For 1949 Campaign

JEROME McDUGALL

All-star second baseman with Twin Falls in the Pioneer League last season, "Mac" is set for the keystone position. McDougall rates one of the brightest prospects in the New York Yankees' system and appears definitely headed for big time.

JOHN HACK

Another member of the Pioneer League all-star aggregation last season from Twin Falls, Hack is expected to draw down a starting berth in the Athletics' outfield. Boasting a .320 average for the 1948 season, Hack should be a big asset to Manager Ted Norbert's crew.

DALE MAYCOCK

Another member of the Twin Falls club during 1948, Maycock, a right-handed pitcher, comes to the Athletics with a 17 and 4 record for last season. A husky-looking youngster, Maycock was one of the top moundsmen in the Pioneer League and is figured to earn a starting berth.

St. Louis Cardinals Told To Vacate Park

Ontario Hockey Has Player Performing By Name Of Cousin

TORONTO (CP)—Ontario Hockey Association officials today are confronted with the problem of a hockey player who appears to be his own cousin. In their records is a certificate attesting that Joseph Pierre Charles Cadieux, a forward with Stratford, Kroehlers of the O.H.A.'s junior A division, was born March 29, 1929, and is thus eligible to play junior hockey.

The Quebec Amateur Hockey Association has another document which says that Joseph Pierre Gascon Cadieux, a forward with Montreal Royals juniors a few years ago, was born Dec. 26, 1926, and is thus 22 years old well over the junior age limit.

Hamilton juniors signed somebody named Pierre Cadieux from the Royals in 1946 and Stratford took him over the next season. Everyone seems to agree that Montreal's Cadieux and Stratford's Cadieux are the same guy. But which?

Toronto Marlboros took a little pressure off the harassed O.H.A. officials last night by bouncing Kroehlers—Cadieux and all—out of the junior playoffs with a 7-5 victory in the deciding game of a best-of-three quarter-final series. But the officials still sought to unscramble their records.

In Pierre's hometown of Valleyfield, Que., a friend of the Cadieux family told a Montreal Gazette reporter that almost everyone in town knew Alonzo the tailor's son Pierre was playing hockey in Ontario under the name of his cousin—Jean Denis' boy Pierre.

The only protest on the books was from Guelph Biltmores, who missed out on the playoffs and feel they should have had Stratford's spot.

Scorers Play Leading Part In Scoring Race

MONTREAL (CP)—The men who compile the official scoring records in the eight National Hockey League cities may have a lot to do in deciding the N.H.L. scoring champion this season.

Nine weeks ago today Chicago's Roy Conacher led linemate Doug Bentley by one point in the scoring race, and today's official figures show Conacher still holding a one-point edge on Bentley, 62 to 61.

Charles Fails To Impress In Taking Fight With Maxim

CINCINNATI (AP)—Ezzard Charles of Cincinnati finished strongly Monday night to win a 15-round boxing decision over Joey Maxim of Cleveland in a bruising battle before 14,062 fans in the Cincinnati Garden.

Charles weighed 181½, Maxim 184. Two of the judges ruled in favor of Charles and the third called it even.

The Associated Press scorecard showed eight rounds for Charles with five for Maxim and two even.

Maxim's jabs and hooks had Charles baffled during the middle part of the fight. He brought blood from Charles' nose and kept the Cincinnati negro off balance most of the time.

Charles started fast and finished fast.

ON BICYCLE He cut Maxim's eye in the 13th and then hurt the Cleveland with a flock of rights and lefts to the jaw as they moved in close. Maxim rallied to stay even in the 14th, but Ezzard was the aggressor in the final round.

Maxim was on his bicycle through most of that heat. When it was all over, Maxim said he had "coasted" through the last three rounds on instructions from his corner because they felt he was well ahead.

There were no knockdowns, but both boys spilled a goodly portion of blood.

LEGION PRACTICE Canadian Legion football team will hold a practice at Athletic Park tonight at 8. All players are asked to be on hand.

Ruth Mercer, Vasherresse Top City Tenpin Tournery

Ruth Mercer and Jessie Vasherresse annexed top honors in the women's tenpin bowling championships which concluded at the Arcade Alleys over the week-end, a complete check on doubles and singles scores revealed today.

Tillicums' Ruth Mercer won the city singles championship with a three-game skein of 556 to edge out Vasherresse by the narrow margin of four pins. She also shared in the doubles title, pairing with Ev Irvine for a combined total of 960.

The all-events title went to Vasherresse with a grand aggregate of 1,409 from scratch with 537 for singles, 475 for doubles and 397 for the team event.

Bowling steadily, Ruth Mercer had games of 186, 176 and 179 in winning the singles title.

Following Ruth Mercer and Vasherresse in the singles were O. Webber 532, D. Hume 527, B. Elves 516, B. Williams 504, E. Irvine 504, M. Welsh 504.

Other prize-winners in the doubles included J. Hibberd and N. Burns 937, K. Bone and M. Welsh 917, M. McKeever and I. Murrant 916, M. Bashforth and J. Vasherresse 909, E. Profit and M. Conlan 907.

Canada Couldn't Find Top-Notch 'Amateur' Club To Invade Europe

By JACK SULLIVAN

There's been a lot of howling in Canada since Sudbury Wolves had the starch taken out of them in the Stockholm "world" hockey championships. Boiled down, it doesn't hold too much water.

Some experts said the European rules were foreign and thereby a detriment to the Canadians. There's nothing "foreign" about the no-holding and interference rules, for instance, and the only so-called detriment is that European referees call the shots according to the book.

They blow the whistle at the suggestion of a rule infraction—and no fooling. Reports on the Wolves' pre-tournament exhibition games said they played a rough game and maybe they figured they could do likewise in the championships and get away with it.

REF TROUBLE * Coach Max Silverman screamed about the referees—when Canada lost—but no complaints were heard when the Wolves were winning.

If Max ran up against trouble in exhibition games and the "offending" official was booked for the championships, he could have protested in committee rooms before the tournament started and made sure the official wasn't on the ice when the Wolves played.

This was done before the 1948 Switzerland Olympics by George Dudley of Midland, Ont., secretary-manager of the Canadian Amateur Hockey Association. Dudley was told of a Swiss referee who had "favored" the other team in pre-Olympic contests, brought it before the International Ice Hockey Federation and the official was vetoed for Canada's games.

CUPBOARD IS BARE

People wall that Canada should send a top-class club to Europe, but where will she get one? Who is willing to pay the salaries of the "amateurs" and make up lost gate receipts to promoters while the boys go to Europe for a couple of months? What teams, with any kind of a chance for the Allan or Memorial Cups, will give this up to take a so-called "world" title?

Montreal Royals declined the offer to represent Canada at the 1948 Olympics for these reasons.

NO BUSH LEAGUERS

European countries may be

Johnny-Come-Latelies in this hockey business, but they've advanced at a fast clip since the war, especially Czechoslovakia, Sweden and Switzerland. The Czechs and Swiss have imported Canadian coaches to develop talent.

Here's an item that points up to the calibre of European hockey: After the last Olympics this reporter was asked by Walter Brown, general manager of the Boston Gardens, to negotiate with two Czech players for try-outs with Boston Bruins of the N.H.L. They were left-winger Jaroslav Drobny and centre Vladimir Zabrodsky.

Brown also wanted the Czech team for a tour of the U.S., but they had returned home before we could catch them.

The U.S. Amateur Hockey Association will sponsor the 1950 championships, meaning only a week or 10-day trip for Canada's team.

We'll wager there'll be a line-up of high-class Canadian clubs wanting to go, that Canada wins it handily and that there'll be some lifted eyebrows at the calibre of European play.

Nanaimo Clippers Get Hockey Title By U.B.C. Default

VANCOUVER (CP)—The Pacific Coast Senior B Hockey League ended its squabble early Monday morning and the title went to Nanaimo Clippers.

U.B.C. Thunderbirds, trailing 3 to 2 in the best-of-seven play-offs, refused to play the sixth game last night on Nanaimo ice.

The default gave the title to Nanaimo, who will now meet Whitehorse in a semifinal series for the British Columbia championship. The victors will meet either Kamloops or Vernon in the provincial final.

U.B.C. manager of Athletics, Ole Bakken, said Collegians balked when the league ordered the sixth game to be played in Nanaimo last night. Five games to date have been staged at the island city.

Comets Take Lead

Bob Whyte's Comets whipped Langford, 36 to 9, in first game of a lower island senior B girls basketball playoff at Sooke last night. Second game of the series will take place at the High School gym tomorrow night.

In an exhibition game Eatons intermediate boys edged Sooke senior C men, 43 to 38. Fields topped the department store squad with 15 points. High pointman of the evening was Michelsen with 27 points for Sooke.

Interhigh Rugby Opens Tomorrow

At a recent meeting, high school officials decided to drop the senior B interhigh rugby schedule which had only started when freezing weather conditions forced curtailment for well over a month, and in its place immediate play will open in the senior A loop.

Five teams are entered in the competition, which will be a round-robin affair with the two top squads playing off for the Howard Russell Trophy. Teams entered include Blacks and Golds from Victoria High, Oak Bay, Mount View and Mount Douglas.

Complete schedule follows:

Tomorrow—Mt. View vs. Oak Bay at Vic High.
Mar. 2—Blacks vs. Mt. View at Vic High.
Mar. 3—Golds vs. Mt. View at Vic High.
Mar. 4—Blacks vs. Mt. Douglas at Windsor Park.
Mar. 5—Oak Bay vs. Mt. Douglas at Windsor Park.
Mar. 6—Oak Bay vs. Blacks at Vic High.
Mar. 7—Mt. View vs. Blacks at Vic High.
Mar. 8—Oak Bay vs. Golds at Windsor Park.

Underdog Regina Hockey Club Holds Three-Game Margin

REGINA (CP)—Regina Pats seemed to have clear sailing today into the Western Canada Junior Hockey League playoff final at the expense of Moose Jaw Canucks.

The Pats, underdogs at the start of the series, came through with a 4 to 2 victory here last night before 4,000 fans to send the count to 3 to 0 in their best-of-seven series. Pats, who finished third in the standing whereas Canucks wound up in a first-place tie with Calgary Buffaloes, won the first two games 6 to 1 and 8 to 2.

In last night's contest, which attracted the largest junior crowd of the local season, Merv Bregg tallied two goals while other Regina scorers were Greg Greenough, whose tally was the winner, and Bunny Smith. Jack McLeod and Red Mellor scored the Moose Jaw goals.

It was a rugged contest with the referees keeping matters fairly well under control. Mellor and Bob Hall picked up misconduct penalties for starting a scuffle in the penalty box after they had been given minors. The two Smiths—Bunny of Regina and Glen of Canucks—went out with majors in the second period for fighting.

SUDBURY WINS

PRAGUE (CP)—Sudbury Wolves Monday night defeated a combined Moravian team 7 to 1 at Ostrava.

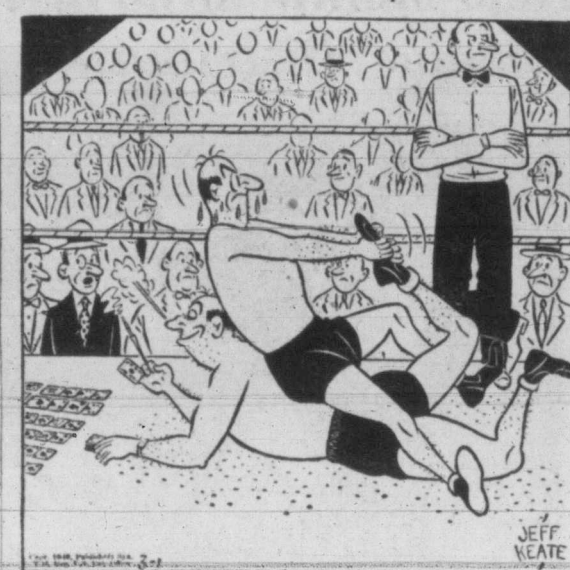

The Canadian team, which finished second at the world amateur hockey championships, tallied two goals in the first and second periods and three in the third. The Czechoslovakia team scored in the second period.

BASEBALL MEETING

Bob Weigand, manager of Ben's Bombers senior baseball club, has called a meeting of all of last year's players for Thursday night at 8 at Macaulay Camp 26, Suite 8.

Portsmouth May Play Manchester In Football Final

LONDON (Reuter)—Portsmouth, leaders of the First Division of the Football Association, and Manchester United, last year's cup winners, may clash in next May's football cup final.

The draw for the semifinals was made Monday. Wolverhampton Wanderers will take on the United in one semifinal and Portsmouth will oppose Leicester City in the other. Both games will be played March 26 with replays, if necessary, set for the following Saturday.

If the favored teams win, it will be Portsmouth and Manchester United in the finals.

But if Leicester City win the semifinal it will be the first time the lowly Second Division club has reached the cup final. Portsmouth defeated them 4 to 1 in 1934, on their only appearance in the semifinals. Leicester already has eliminated two First Division clubs in this season's cup play, Birmingham and Preston North End.

Wolverhampton and Manchester United, cup favorites, have met twice this season in regular league play, each winning at home.

By avoiding Portsmouth in the semifinals, Wolverhampton has the possibility of gaining revenge in the final for their surprise defeat in the 1939 final. In that game, Wolverhampton, although hot favorites, were defeated 4 to 1 by Portsmouth.

In the semifinals, Wolverhampton will play Manchester United at Sheffield with a replay, if necessary, at Everton. Portsmouth and Leicester City will meet at Highbury, London, with a replay, if necessary, at Villa Park, Birmingham.

Cromwell Remains Betting Favorite For Grand National

LONDON (AP)—Lord Mildmay's Cromwell continued today to hold on as favorite for the Grand National steeplechase at 100 to 7.

Cromwell held at the same price as last week, despite his finishing second to Royal Mount last Saturday.

Blakely Grove, most fancied of the three American entries in the Aintree classic set for March 26, now is a doubtful starter. He has an injured right foreleg.

The eight-year-old won four times last year and had been a 25 to 1 choice in betting on the National. Today he dropped out of the betting market.

Other odds: 18 to 1 Roimond, 20 to 1 Cloncarraig, 22 to 1 Rowland Roy, 25 to 1 Royal Mount, Ulster March, 28 to 1 Bricett, Cavaliero, Silver Fame, 33 to 1 Bruno II and Happy Home.

There was considerable betting activity on the Lincolnshire Handicap, first-big race of the flat season March 19. The Lincolnshire is coupled with the National in the big spring "double."

Fair judgment, previously a 20 to 1 chance, became joint favorite with Minister Lovell at 100 to 8.

New York — Jimmy Walters, 161, Brooklyn, outpointed Jimmy Flood, 160½, New York (8).

Thunderbirds Field Strongest Team To Oppose Crimson Tide

VANCOUVER (CP)—The University of British Columbia Thunderbirds are scheduled to clash with Victoria's Crimson Tide here Saturday in a McKinnon Cup rugby game.

In a previous game against the "Crimson Tide" in Victoria the Thunderbirds came away with a convincing 22 to 0 victory. Captain of the Thunderbird squad this year is Alex Carlyle, a three-time letterman at U.B.C. He is an ex-Vancouver Rep player.

Shifted to the breakaway position is Doug Reid, sensational running back of the U.B.C. football team last fall. Doug played for both Vancouver Lions and Victoria "Crimson Tide" in the past.

WINNIPEG HOCKEY

WINNIPEG (CP)—Winnipeg Canadians went their way into the Manitoba junior hockey final against Brandon Wheat Kings Monday night when they overpowered Winnipeg Monarchs 10 to 7 for a sweep of their best-of-five league semifinal.

United Moves Outdoors; To Play Royals Saturday

Hockey Champions

VERNON (CP)—Vernon Canadians last night swept the Mainline-Okanagan Senior B Hockey League championship with an 8 to 1 verdict over Kamloops Elks in the fifth contest of the best-of-five series.

The victory was good for the Willoughby Trophy and the right to proceed in the hunt for western Canada intermediate honors.

Ahead 1 to 0 in the first session, Canadians lost their edge on Kamloops only goal in the second before they shot ahead again on three quick markers. Four more were added in the final period.

Buck Mellor and Johnny Loudon scored twice for Vernon while Reine Miller, Dave McKay, Rod Booth and Bob Donald added singles. Only Kamloops' marker was fired by Cliff Mills.

Good news for soccer fans. Manager Roy Barnes of the United announced last week that the Coast League club would resume outdoor training this week in preparation for Saturday's game with New Westminster at Athletic Park.

The team will practice at Athletic Park tonight and Thursday at 7. All players are requested to turn out.

On Sunday the club took part in a practice game with Golds of the Intermediate League. John Pickburn, a newcomer who has yet to be seen in Coast League play, looked good and scored two goals. Tommy Druce also showed up for the game after a long absence from the sport and his performance pleased the United board of strategy.

Decision on the possibility of Newcastle United visiting Victoria during that club's visit to British Columbia will be made at a meeting in Vancouver this week.

Bulk Of $82,816 Estate Left For Home For Aged

Approximately $75,000 was left for the establishment of an Anglican home for the aged in the will of Mrs. Emma Elizabeth Colgarrie, who died here Feb. 6 at the age of 81, leaving an estate valued at $82,816.27.

The testatrix also left a sum of $5,000 to St. Saviour's Church, Victoria West, $1,000 to the Protestant Orphans' Home and $1,000 to the Aged and Infirm Women's Home in Victoria.

Two Vancouver nephews, Thomas A. Wood and George A. W. Wood, will be provided with incomes for life from $10,000 each. The sums will be turned over to the Aged Women's Home after their deaths.

She directed that the bulk of her money be paid outright to the treasurer of the Columbia Di-cesan Board of the Women's Auxiliary of the Church of England in Canada for the establishment or maintenance of the Caroline Macklem Home for Aged Women.

The Caroline Macklem fund was launched a year ago at the annual diocesan meeting of the auxiliary with the idea of establishing a Church of England home for aged people of both sexes, in memory of the noted Victoria philanthropic worker.

Mrs. Colgarrie was a life-long church-worker and an ardent supporter of missionary work. She was the wife of Jean Colgarrie who came here from France. He was a partner in the wholesale liquor firm of Colgarrie and Camusa, on Yates Street. He died in France.

Funeral Services Today For Resident Born At Cary Castle

Funeral services were held from Hayward's B.C. Funeral Chapel this afternoon, for Mrs. Jessie Knox Eastman, widow of Sam Eastman and daughter of George Winter, who for years in the time of horse-drawn carriages was coachman to governors at Victoria.

Mrs. Eastman, who died at St. Joseph's Hospital Saturday, was born at Cary Castle, the residence of colonial governors and lieutenant-governors before it burned down in 1898. Its place was taken on the same site, by the present Government House.

She lived with her father and mother in the coachman's house in the grounds, for Mr. Winter was the senior driver to the government. He was with Hon. A. E. Kennedy, last governor of the Crown Colony of Vancouver Island.

He was also with Hon. Frederick Seymour, first colonial governor of the Crown Colony of Vancouver Island and with Sir Joseph Trutch, first lieutenant-governor after British Columbia joined Confederation in 1871.

Mrs. Eastman's two brothers were both widely-known in the city's early days and were familiar figures in blue and gold livery, on the streets of Victoria. George Winter drove for Hon. and Mrs. James Dunsmuir and Robert Winter was the coachman to Mr. Justice and Mrs. P. Irving.

Mrs. Eastman is survived by two daughters, Mrs. Margaret E. Salt of Royal Oak, private secretary to the Appeal Court Justices at the Court House in Victoria; Mrs. F. J. Willway of Glen Lake, a grandson, William Salt of Royal Oak, and a sister, Mrs. Annie Robertson, Victoria. Rev. S. J. Wickens conducted services. Interment was in the family plot, Ross Bay Cemetery.

School Board Backs Track Construction

President Lloyd McLellan of the Victoria Gyró Club told members Monday that a committee from the Gyró Club had met with school board officials recently in connection with the construction of a quarter-mile cinder track at the Victoria High School.

Despite rumors to the contrary, Mr. McLellan stated that the school board was backing the project and has approved the club's offer to finance the deal. Present plans call for construction to start immediately.

The Superannuated Federal Civil Servants' Association will meet Wednesday at 2 in the hall of Britannia Branch, Canadian Legion.

Postman Most Popular Man In Town Today As Savings Cheque Distribution Begins

By AILEEN CAMPBELL
With a smile and a song, many a Victoria householder will greet the postman this month.

Businessmen will be happy, the cloak and suit trade will be happy—perhaps even the income tax department will be happy. All signs point to a gay Easter... perhaps it's a new outfit, an extra payment on the car or just giving the old bank account a little lift.

The time for the government to refund compulsory savings, this year for 1943-44, has tolled around again, and the first 800 were received at the Victoria post office bright and early this morning.

Although the first batch were mostly "A's" there is no cause to despair, that if you are in the "W's" you will be the last to be served.

"They didn't go out in alphabetical order last time," say postal officials.

THERE WILL BE NO DELAYS
The well-oiled wheels of the local post office had no difficulty handling the first lot of mail according to Postmaster John B. Sinclair. However, with thousands to be sent out, officials took no chances. All annual leave for the month of March has been stopped, so you can rest assured, your cheque will not be delayed a moment, once received at the post office.

"All letters are registered mail and must be signed for on delivery," Mr. Sinclair said.

There are 2,250,000 Canadian recipients who will get cheques before the end of March. The refund is the largest in Canadian history and will be paid in the shortest time on record. As fast as the mailman can handle them, the cheques are going out. It will take the entire month of March for distribution.

Although all refundable savings cheques are dated March 31, arrangements have been made that they may be cashed immediately on receipt. The cheques are being mailed from local tax offices across the country, with more than 350,000 from the Vancouver office, representing an amount in excess of $30,000,000.

FOR THE SPRING SALES

Merchants across the country are looking to the release of $230,000,000 across Canada to set spring sales off to a good start. Whether in shoes or motor cars, they figure they will get their share.

In Victoria, the sight of flowered bonnets, the latest in two-tone suits featured in store windows has not brought unalloyed joy to the housewife—what with Christmas and the January sales behind, the budget was getting raggy at the ears.

The compulsory savings deducted in 1943-44 were about the heaviest of the war years. It may have hurt then, but many who find budgeting a strain, will no doubt be blessing the government for its foresight. In retrospect, it was not such a bad idea.

Many citizens in fact, have cottoned on to the notion—"If the government can save my money, why can't we?"

Their savings are going into the bank, perhaps a pension scheme. With others it will help to meet doctors' and dentists' bills and the sundry other expenses which come up to baffle the domestic exchequer.

To some, the only sour note in the picture is that by odd coincidence, their refundable savings just about equal what they will owe the government in income tax this year. Getting money from one government department only to hand it over to another, takes the kick out of the whole thing.

Mimists Extraordinary Mata And Hari Delight

By AUDREY ST.D. JOHNSON

Did we actually see balls flying through the air, aerial artists at work high above our heads, violins and harps and cellos being played? Monday night's audience at the Royal Theatre could be pardoned a slight confusion in the matter, confronted as it was with a troupe of artists who, it seems, has inherited the mantle of wizardry.

Mata and Hari are mimists extraordinary. They have developed the art to a point where it has become a power-of-suggestion almost a hypnotic force; and further, they are adepts at using every trick of costume and lighting to enhance their effects. The evening was one of high entertainment from beginning to end; entertainment with a most diversified appeal, aside from its comedy. There was superb precision, buoyancy and lightness in all the work of the five dancers who comprise the troupe. Muscular co-ordination, control and timing alone, were dazzling enough to bring gasps from the delighted audience.

PULSE OF THE MUSIC

Translating rhythm into life and color, might serve as one description of the performance of Ruth Mata and Eugene Hari. Their rhythmic effect is almost indescribable; the nearest one can get, is to say that they are the pulse of the music. In their opening, fascinating "Hindu Fakir Show," as the clowns in "In the Circus," and particularly "Carnegie Hall," the gay parody on a symphony concert, they displayed their remarkable gifts for whimsical caricature.

"Carnegie Hall" was probably the triumph of the evening for the two stars. The quaint effect of costume and the vivid performance on invisible instruments—all sections of the orchestra as well as conductor, guest artist and audience, being presented—was "Danced Theatre" at its best and most virtuosic.

Both Mata and Hari have danced with the famed Trudi Schoop ballet, but their own show has an individuality that borrows nothing but the basic idea from the former association. Their work is more direct and simple in conception, broader in its humor, more vigorous. It is also less rich and varied in implication and less subtle. The nearest approach to banality was a blues number, the most brilliant satire, a bizarre comment on Modern Art of the abstract and surrealist schools; the latter danced by Zoya Leporsky, Norman Thomson and Tommy Marlowe.

In addition there were many delightful bits, such as the Zebra and the Lion in "The Circus," danced by Zoya Leporsky and Norman Thomson, and Tommy Marlowe's Passer-by in "Penny Arcade."

PIANIST GREAT AID

Incidentally, "Lothar Perl at the piano" means a great deal more than might be thought. Mr. Perl's value to the troupe is manifold, beginning with the fact that he arranges and composes much of the music used. But it is also safe to say that there can be comparatively few pianists with such perfect understanding of a dancer's mental and muscular reactions and timing. In assessing the success of the performance, it would be difficult to over-estimate Mr. Perl's contribution.

Motorists Given Lecture On How To Drive Safely

Be courteous, observe the rules of the road, keep your mind on the wheel and don't speed and become a highway criminal.

This was the advice Sgt. Brooke Douglass of the city police force, gave to motorists attending the annual meeting of the Victoria Automobile Club Monday. The police officer recently returned from attending a course at the Traffic Institute of the Northwestern University of Illinois.

Failure to signal before pulling out from a curb and not keeping a proper lookout for oncoming cars were the causes of 32 per cent of the accidents in Victoria, he said.

He said many motorists could avoid accidents if they got into the proper lane when turning at an intersection or stopping at an automatic signal before turning. He warned against speeding. He pointed out that a car moving at a rate of 30 miles per hour and more traveled many feet before the vehicle could be brought to a stop.

"Give pedestrians the right of way," he said.

Sgt. Brooke also said that a man who was emotionally upset should not drive a car. "His mind is not on the wheel," he said, "and anything is likely to happen then."

"You may have the finest engine in the country, the finest auto manufactured," he said, "but remember the most important nut in the auto is the one behind the wheel. Please be careful."

The speaker was thanked by Major Cuthbert Holmes.

F. G. Mulliner was re-elected president of the Automobile Club. R. W. Hiberson, vice-president and George I. Warren, secretary-treasurer.

Directors: J. V. Johnson, W. P. D. Pemberton, H. J. Pen-dray, G. H. Walton and W. L. Woodhouse.

With regard to the club membership, Mr. Warren said there had been a rapid and steady increase. At the close of 1946, the membership totalled 160. By the end of 1947, the total had reached 181 and in 1948 the membership had swelled to 284.

"During 1948, 56 emergency road service calls were furnished, of which 18 were to our members at our own garages, 14 to our members serviced by other clubs, and 24 to members of other clubs, visiting the district," he said. "The total cost for the 56 emergency road service calls was $151. The financial statement showed that the club's cash balance was $3,029 as of Jan. 1, 1949."

Campaign Launched To Raise $65,000 For Red Cross Work

With splendid co-operation from the weatherman, the Red Cross 1949 campaign for funds got off to a fine start in Victoria Monday with canvassers in all districts reporting they were received well on their initial calls to homes and business offices.

The campaign is set to continue until March 31. During this time Greater Victoria must subscribe $65,000 to ensure continuance of Red Cross service in this area during the forthcoming year.

British Columbia's objective in the campaign has been set at $500,000. Quota for the whole of Canada is $5,000,000.

NEED MORE CANVASSERS

Despite a good response to an earlier call for volunteers to assist in carrying out the campaign here, more canvassers are urgently needed.

Persons who can give only one hour a day or one day a week to this vital part of the campaign work will find their services welcomed.

Anyone willing to canvass in Oak Bay should contact Maj. Keith MacDougall at E 5672. Persons willing to canvass in Victoria, Saanich or Esquimalt should contact Miss Sara Spencer, chairman of the residential division, at G 5950, or Mrs. Hobart Molson, vice-chairman of the residential division, at E 9028.

Sentenced For Drunken Driving

Finlay C. MacDonald was sentenced to seven days in jail and his driver's license was suspended for one year today in city police court. He was found guilty by Magistrate H. C. Hall on a charge of being intoxicated while in control of a car.

Charge against the defendant arose following a light accident he had with a car driven by Sidney Barnes, 3973 Cedar Hill Road, on the night of Feb. 26 on Johnson Street Extension and Catherine Street. Evidence of Dr. E. L. McIven, several police officers and Barnes was to the effect the accused was intoxicated and not fit to drive a car.

Defendant declined, after prosecution evidence had been presented, to give his story in the witness box.

Court Orders Family Of 10 Out Of Waterfront Shack

City police court today heard a story about a Saskatchewan family of 10—the parents and eight children—living in a shack by the city harbor under deplorable conditions.

It is another chapter in the story of the cruel postwar housing shortage here and elsewhere. The shack has been labeled by Lloyd Smith, city sanitary inspector, as unfit to live in.

There are no sanitary facilities and no water supply. Complaints reaching the city health department spoke of unclean children, who were also poorly clothed, among other things, said Mr. Smith. He said all complaints have been checked and found to be true.

City Plans $2,000 Grant To Red Cross

A grant of $2,000 to the Canadian Red Cross Society is planned by the City Council. The council's finance committee today asked that the amount be included in the 1949 estimates.

Keyhole Peeking Cinched Conviction

A key-hole peeking constable provided the larger share of the evidence in city police court today to bring a conviction against two young men for supplying an Indian girl with rye whiskey last Sunday.

They were Robert Ross and Walter R. Yeamans, two men in their 20's. The Indian girl was Edna Henry. Magistrate H. C. Hall imposed the usual penalty against the pair of $50 or one month in jail each.

Constable Ray Maitland who was accompanied by Constable R. Berry, told of watching through the key hole of the room the three were in and seeing Edna Henry receive drinks from Ross. The girl and Yeamans testified the bottle belonged to Ross and that he had invited them to his room.

Lloyd McKenzie, counsel for Yeamans pointed out there was no evidence his client had supplied the girl with the liquor.

Magistrate Hall, however, considered it a joint act. He noted evidence was that Yeamans drove them to the hotel in his car. The magistrate considered this one step in the case to drive the girl to the place where liquor could be supplied.

James Proudfoot, appearing for Ross, did not call evidence,

Claims Of Fraud In Repairs To Chimneys

Claims that citizens are being cheated by chimney repairmen were received at the City Hall today.

Among complainants is H. D. Davis, 131 Olive Street, who said he had paid a company $45 to repair his chimney on Feb. 16 and that his roof was damaged in the repairing process, but the company failed to do anything about the damage.

Other citizens have complained that chimney repair companies "frighten" home-owners with false reports that bricks are loose in their chimneys, causing fire hazards. The owners then are charged excessive costs for comparatively little work, they claimed.

Drill Team Requests City Financial Aid

A request for financial aid to send the Victoria Girls' Drill Team to the Wenatchee Apple Blossom Festival in May was received today by the City Council.

Gordon E. Harris, chairman of the team association, said invitations already had been received for the smart-stepping drill squad to attend celebrations this summer at St. Paul, Minnesota, and Portland, Ore.

All invitations could not be accepted, but it was hoped the Wenatchee trip could be made. Mr. Harris said the team had brought valuable publicity to Victoria in the 11 years since it was formed. He said that over 550 appearances had been made by the girls.

Overhaul Proposed Of Civic Franchise By Vancouver

Plans to overhaul the civic franchise in Vancouver were presented to the Legislature's private bills committee today by the mainland city.

The plans contained in proposed amendments to the Vancouver city charter are to extend the franchise to the spouses of present property owners, and tenants, and to remove the restrictions on Chinese, Japanese and native Indians who would otherwise qualify.

While A. R. MacDougall, Coalition, Vancouver-Point Grey, contended this represented a change in the whole basis of municipal franchise, Opposition Leader Harold Winch asked why continue the discrimination, why not give the franchise to all Vancouver citizens who are British subjects.

At the same time the city asked that the ceilings on the license fees for businesses be removed. A. Lord, the city solicitor, reporting that there had been a suggestion that Vancouver abolish the business tax and merely double the license fees.

This proposed amendment was opposed by the B.C. Electric, Canadian Pacific Railway, the Real Estate Board, Canadian Bankers' Association and the Board of Trade.

The committee also heard representations from North Vancouver to continue for another 20 years building restrictions on Grand Boulevard, which officials contended was the widest street in the world.

While the original restricting act provided for construction of no houses of less than $4,000 value, it now is requested that the limit be raised to $8,000.

Toastmasters Giving Speechcraft Course

Mayor Percy George Wednesday evening will officially open a nine-week course in speechcraft which is being given by Victoria's three toastmasters' clubs.

The opening will be marked by a banquet at Perry's dining room at 6:15 Wednesday. The course will be held every Wednesday evening for the next nine weeks.

Clubs taking part are the Victoria Toastmasters' Club No. 38, the Thunderbird Toastmasters' Club No. 396 and the Victoria Union Toastmasters' Club No. 331.

Instruction in the course will be given by senior members of the three clubs.

Fractures Knees In Serious Fall

Condition of Mrs. Evelyn Willey, 65, of 850 Phoenix Street, injured in a fall, was described by Royal Jubilee Hospital officials as "fairly good" today.

Mrs. Willey was admitted to hospital Monday afternoon after fracturing both her knees in a fall down a flight of stairs.

She was taken to hospital by L. H. Brookbank, C. & C. ambulance driver, who said Mrs. Willey lay helpless for more than an hour before her plight was discovered and the ambulance summoned.

Shelbourne Floods Subject Of Petition

Annual flooding of Shelbourne Street was brought to the attention of the City Council today by residents of the 2900 and 3000 block who asked that steps be taken to eliminate the condition.

Thirty-three householders in the two blocks of the street signed a petition to this effect. The householders asked that the city work with Saanich to rectify the situation. They claimed Saanich was largely responsible for conditions causing the floods.

Rules Tenant Can Carry On Personal Business In Home

Hundreds of small contractors and salesmen carrying on their business in their apartment homes breathed more freely today as the result of a judgment handed down by Judge H. H. Shandley in County Court.

The case involved Louise Miriam Sylvester, landlady, who applied to the court for order to oust E. Hodgkinson, a tenant, from his apartment, on the grounds that Mr. Hodgkinson was using the dwelling for combined business and dwelling purposes.

The judge dismissed the action in a judgment which is expected to have far-reaching effects. It was the first time a judge in Victoria had been asked to define the difference between a dwelling house and business premises.

In her action, the landlady contended the tenant used his apartment to put through business telephone calls and also corresponded from his rooms. This she claimed was contrary to the Landlord and Tenant Act.

In his judgment, the judge said

Business Leader PredictsCanada's Boom Will Continue

By FORBES RHUDE
Canadian Press Business Editor

Some people say depressions are caused by sun spots. Whatever it is, it is difficult to figure out why North America, with all kinds of resources and all kinds of productive power, should be nervous.

If it gets a depression it probably deserves it, but it would be pretty difficult to tell the people of this continent that their resources and know-how can't produce a reasonable standard of living.

MAY EQUAL THE PEAK

Earle C. Brockett, vice-president of the Canadian Johns-Manville Co. Ltd., in comments to his company's general sales meeting in Toronto, expected Canada's business boom to continue this year and said it even might equal the all-time peaks of 1948.

He saw no indication of an early decline, and said Canadian business is not tinged with pessimism as are some United States businesses.

Delegation DemandsCompletion To Haig Of North Shore Road

A six-man delegation representing boards of trade on the north shore of the Fraser River today asked the Provincial government to complete and modernize the north shore highway from Vancouver to Haig.

The delegation contended that with the big development of highways in the interior of the province, particularly including the Hope-Princeton road, a secondary highway to link Hope and Vancouver was needed to carry the growing traffic. The delegation contended too that the north shore road would not be subjected to blockings by slides during the winter.

On the east side the highway would have to be extended from Agassiz to Haig, a distance of 18 miles. Delegates said that the 10-mile section to Ruby Creek would be feasible construction but three miles of the eight-mile section from Ruby Creek to Haig would be difficult rock work. The project now would cost an estimated $750,000.

On the western end the delegates wanted the present highway modernized.

The representations were made by a six-man delegation for which Rex Cox of Mission served as spokesman.

Ald. Diggon AsksLeave Of Absence

Ald. Harold M. Diggon today asked the City Council for leave of absence from civic duties from March 17 to early in May.

He said it was necessary that he make a trip to eastern Canada "and other points" in that period.

Ald. Frank Mulliner is expected to make a similar request later. He is planning a six-week trip to England on private business.

St. George SocietyMeeting In Oak Bay

The quarterly meeting of the Victoria branch of the Royal Society of St. George will be held Wednesday evening in the St. Michael's School auditorium, Oak Bay, at 8.

Philip Oliver will give a reading from Charles Dickens, and K. C. Symons will give a talk on Klipping.

The soloist of the evening will be Arthur Jackman, who will sing old English songs. An invitation is extended to new arrivals from England.

Rain In February4 In. Above Normal

Precipitation here during the month of February was 4.68 inches above normal, according to William Burton, local weatherman at the Gonzales Meteorological Station.

A total of 7.08 inches was recorded over the 28-day period, whereas the usual quota of moisture in February is only 3 inches. Precipitation in January, which amounted to only .8 inch, made the two months' total read 7.88 inches, which is .61 inch above normal.

Mr. Burton related that the month's quota of sunshine, 96 hours, was succeeded by three hours last month. Mean temperature recorded was 38 degrees, which is three degrees below normal, however.

Yesterday was the hottest day of the month as the mercury rose to 57 degrees. Low for the month was listed on the 12th, when the thermometer read only 19 degrees.

Higher Charges AskedFor Garbage Disposal

Extra charges for garbage disposal may be levied against outside municipalities as well as owners of commercial buildings within the city, it was learned today.

The City Council's public works committee is advocating:

1. Charge of 15 cents each for more than one can of garbage collected from apartment houses;

2. Charge of 15 cents a can for all garbage collected from hotels, commercial businesses and all buildings other than private dwellings.

3. Increase of the 40 cents a yard charge to 45 cents to outside municipalities for disposing of garbage.

The committee claims increased costs of handling garbage and barge towing services for dumping refuse at sea gives the city only two cents a yard profit in taking care of the garbage collected in Oak Bay, Saanich and Esquimalt.

Two-Year Sentence

Ralph Victor Golar, 20, formerly of Nova Scotia, was sentenced to two years in the penitentiary by Magistrate H. C. Hall today in city police court.

Golar appeared for sentence on a charge of breaking and entering a hotel room occupied by James Nichol on Sunday with intent to commit theft. Accused was found guilty of the charge in the same court yesterday. Evidence was that he broke open the door, tore pictures off the wall and generally messed things up in the room before searching Nichol's pockets. Golar did not give evidence.

Prairie VisitorsEnjoy Golf, Fishing

There is a group of people visiting Victoria who really appreciate the city. They won the trip as a prize in a sales contest sponsored by Marshall Wells Ltd. and are currently enjoying sightseeing tours, fishing and golfing.

After arriving on a Trans-Canada Air Lines plane from chilly prairie points Sunday morning, members of the party could do little else but talk about the warm weather and glorious sunshine.

Those who made the trip, and who are staying at the Empress Hotel for four days, are Mr. and Mrs. D. Sundberg, Winnipeg; Mr. and Mrs. E. Kirshaw, Regina; Mr. and Mrs. F. Gould, Saskatoon; Mr. and Mrs. B. Majeau, Edmonton; and Mr. and Mrs. H. Anderson, Calgary.

A. G. Bowman, Winnipeg, is in charge of the expense-paid trip.

District DirectoriesTo Be Issued Soon

Sun Directories Ltd., Vancouver, has decided to discontinue its past policy of each year publishing one big directory for all of British Columbia and Yukon Territory.

Instead, it intends to publish several smaller directories dealing with various provincial districts. These districts will be determined by existing letter carrier service.

The 1949-50 directory editions will include one for Greater Victoria.

The new policy will mean information contained in the directories will be more up to date. Whereas it used to take 11 months from the time information on Victoria was collected to the time it appeared in the directory, it will now only take four months.

News of the change in policy was well received at the Chamber of Commerce. Directors of the chamber suggested such a move at their last monthly meeting.

Farmers Demand Speed-Up In WarOn Predatory Animals In B.C.

The advisory Board of Farmers' Institute today approved resolutions calling for a speed-up in the war against predatory animals and changes in the administration of the Game Commission.

Resolutions approved called for:

1. Control of bounties on predatory animals, presently under the Game Commission, to be transferred to the agriculture department.

2. Development of a long-range plan of predatory animal control with a larger portion of the $700,000 annual Game Commission fees going to predatory animal control.

3. Increase in hunting license fees, the increased revenue to be used to compensate farmers losing animals to hunters, and greater protection to farmers for damage to their property by hunters.

4. Reductions in deer seasons, if necessary, to be made at the beginning rather than the end of the season, so that farmers would have greater opportunity to hunt.

5. Appointment of a farmer to the Game Commission to protect agricultural interests.

6. Raising of bounties on timber wolves, coyotes and cougars in the Peace River district and the northern part of the eastern game district to bring them to the same level as paid in the western game district.

At the discussions during the morning the advisory board also dealt with land clearings, cattle and plant diseases, control of weeds and other topics.

Their demands included:

1. That land clearing facilities be provided by the government for the Nanaimo-Cedar district.

2. That additional bush cutting units be provided under the government's land-clearing program.

3. That payments for land clearing be spread over a period of five years.

4. That the Provincial government accept a larger share of the cost of vaccinating calves in outlying areas to prevent the spread of Bangs disease.

5. That the agriculture department enact legislation to prevent the importation of potatoes containing bacterial ring-rot.

6. That the Provincial and federal governments adopt a stronger policy of soil conservation.

7. That the provincial agriculture department subsidize veterinary service for rural districts.

8. That the provincial works department, where necessary, use pressure sprayers to irradiate obnoxious weeds on roadsides.

9. That more inspectors be appointed to enforce weed control.

Federation Of Agriculture AsksMargarine Color Control By B.C.

The B.C. Federation of Agriculture today asked the Provincial government to prohibit the sale of margarine imitating the color of butter and to prohibit the use of suggestive advertising such as illustrations of dairy barns, farms and churns.

The federation, in its annual legislative demands to the provincial cabinet, also asked that the name margarine be clearly inscribed on all packages containing the product and that restaurants, dining-rooms and other places serving food be required to advise customers that margarine was being served as a substitute for butter.

The brief was presented to the cabinet by a three-man delegation composed of J. R. J. Stirling, president; Alex. H. Mercer, vice-president, and C. A. Hayden, secretary.

The delegation also asked:

1. The proposed pathological laboratory be located in the lower mainland area instead of Victoria.

2. That school taxation be removed entirely from the land.

3. That the sales tax be removed from items essential to agricultural production.

4. That the provincial government co-operate to secure a "no claims bonus" for automobile insurance.

5. That the provincial government arrange a marketing conference to help centre proper attention on the crisis facing various divisions of B.C. agriculture.

6. That a commission be set up to develop policies to control predatory animals.

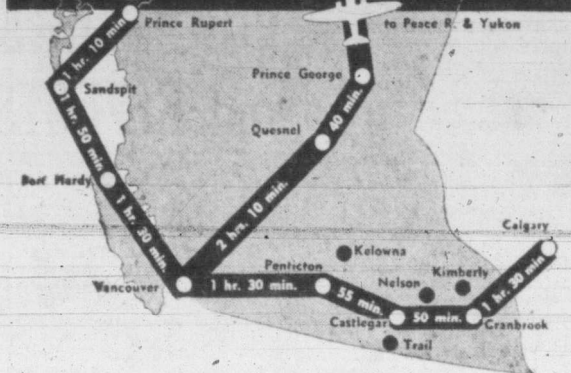

7. That the government consider accepting

U.K. Doubling Bacon Exports From Holland

LONDON (CP)—The United Kingdom has arranged to double her imports of bacon from the Netherlands without entering into commitments to supply a wide range of goods she may be able to market in Canada, informed sources said today.

The trade agreement provides for purchase in 1949 of 10,000 tons of Dutch bacon compared with 4,271 tons in 1948. In 1938 Britain imported nearly 26,000 tons of Dutch bacon.

The Canadian National Railway Veterans' Association monthly meeting will be held in the K. of P. Hall Friday at 2. Films will be shown.

Commons Debates Indian, Oil, Trade, Other Problems

OTTAWA (CP)—Oil and Indians gave the Commons Throne Speech debate a western flavor Monday.

Two Alberta members—Joseph Dechene (Lib., Athabasca), and Douglas Harkness (P.C., Calgary East)—called for greater development of Alberta's oil fields and tar sands and emphasized that the great reservoirs of liquid fuel still are virtually untapped.

Mr. Harkness then joined with Garfield Case (P.C., Grey North, Ont.) in urging the government to proceed with its projected revision of the Indian Act to remove the injustices and inequalities under which Canada's native population lives.

The Calgary member added a demand for appointment of a special committee to investigate the Central Mortgage and Housing Corporation, with particular emphasis on the Bow River housing project in Calgary.

IN THIRD WEEK

The continuing debate, rolling into its third week, skipped over a variety of subjects ranging from prairie irrigation and external trade to wheat and tax reductions.

Revenue Minister McCann said the government will protect the tax position of farmers receiving cash payments for wheat delivered before the current tax year.

Resources Minister MacKinnon said the choice of the route for the proposed Trans-Canada Highway will be up to the provinces.

In the main debate, Mr. Dechene said the tar sands of Alberta constituted the greatest reserve of oil in the world and urged that they be developed promptly to provide Canada and her allies with adequate supplies of oil in the event of another war.

Mr. Harkness said Alberta's oil industry had received "little attention" from the government and suggested it was time the Dominion took steps to encourage production. Up to now, oil resources had just been "scratched."

Turning to the Indian problem, he expressed surprise that the government has not yet decided whether to introduce legislation to amend the Indian Act. In seven months the government's law of fathers had not been able to revise the draft act.

Maj.-Gen. Pearkes, V.C. (P.C., Nanaimo) sought improved legislation to ensure safety at sea and said British Columbia seamen underwent considerable risk when they put out into the Pacific.

SHIFTING OF OFFICES

Fernand Vial (L., St. Boniface, Man.) protesting against the transfer of the Trans-Canada Air Lines head offices to Montreal from Winnipeg, termed the move "unjustified" and asked that the airlines board of directors be instructed to reconsider their decision.

R. R. Knight (C.C.F., Saskatoon) said the government should cut away the restraints which were binding trade between Canada and the United Kingdom. Each had surpluses which the other needed and yet Britain was being forced into the arms of Europe while Canada looked for a long-range market in the United States.

Says British Reds Would Sabotage War Against Russia

LONDON (AP)—Harry Pollitt, general secretary of the Communist Party, said Monday British Communists would try to sabotage any "imperialist aggressive war" against Russia.

The Communist Daily Worker quoted Pollitt:

"If provocateurs ask us what we will do in the event of an imperialist aggressive war against the U.S.S.R., we will reply in the same way as Ernest Bevin in 1920—organize strikes and councils of action to prevent that war from being carried out."

Bevin, who for years was a trade union leader, now is foreign secretary.

In 1920 Bevin, as a leader of the Transport Workers' Union, used a threat of a transport strike to halt British intervention against the Bolsheviks in Russia.

26-Voice Glee Club To Appear Wednesday

Ernest G. Dawson, whose choral group entries won four leading awards at the 1948 B.C. Musical Festival, is conductor of the B.C. Electric Glee Club from Vancouver which will present a musical program in the Empress Ballroom Wednesday evening at 8:15 under auspices of the Solarium Junior League.

The 26-voice male glee club will bring as assisting artists, Miss Erika Navos, CBC soprano, who is a graduate of musical schools in Czechoslovakia and popular artist with the Vancouver Symphony, and Wallace King, concert violinist, playing choices from Mozart, Weimarski and Cesar Cui.

Retires After 37 Years At City Hall

James Walker, an employee of the city for over 37 years, retired Monday on superannuation.

A presentation was made to him at a ceremony in the office of Mayor Percy George at the close of the day's work.

Mr. Walker was an accountant in the waterworks department on retirement, and at the presentation ceremony Mayor George paid tribute to him "for a record that is certainly to be envied."

"You have our respect and goodwill, not only because of your punctuality and blameless, unmarred record as a public official, but also because at all times you have been kind and sincere," the chief magistrate said to him.

Rosie Pays Her Way At S.P.C.A. Shelter

Unlike most of the "guests" at the S.P.C.A. animal shelter, one which the society's inspector took into custody last week is paying its way.

Rosie, a friendly fat Rhode Island hen, laid an egg for her keepers today.

It was her first offering after six days of known inactivity, and the society hopes she'll keep up the good work.

Rosie was the subject of a complaint from a Richmond Road gardener who did not appreciate her grub-seeking methods. His garden was being torn up.

The society inspector went to the rescue and after canvassing the district in fruitless search for her owner, took Rosie to the animal shelter.

There she made herself at home in one of the dog kennels, where a little straw and a perch were provided. But it was not until today that she proved her worth, to the applause of the shelter caretaker.

Tragic Warning In Stuttgart

Showing how the "punishment fits the crime" for carelessness on streets bearing heavy traffic, the U.S. military police have put a grim warning on this stand in front of the main railway station in Stuttgart, occupied Germany. It's the wreckage of all that's left of a baby carriage in which a child was killed in an accident. (SNS Photo)

Makes Crazy Attack With Knife And Razor

TORONTO (CP)—Armed with a razor and a knife, a 35-year-old janitor at the suburban Weston Sanatorium today attacked and wounded a nurse, a patient and a woman employee, hospital officials reported.

The man, identified by police as Samuel Care, 35, was said to have severe self-inflicted injuries and is not expected to live.

The three victims, suffering multiple stab wounds and gashes, were reported in serious condition.

Two of the victims were identified as Eleanor Cavanaugh, a nurse, and Mamie McLellan, a cleaning woman. Name of the patient was not disclosed.

Hospital authorities said they were unable to explain the reason for the attack other than that the man had "gone out of his mind."

Care had been a resident employee at the hospital for the last three years. Police said they took a razor blade, a razor and a pair of scissors from him.

"He had slashed his wrist and attempted to swallow the knife," Chief Constable R. Alexander said.

The police chief said he did not think charges would be laid since Care was "in pretty bad condition and may never recover."

Gales Kill 19 In Europe, Britain

LONDON (AP)—Gales whipped Europe and Britain today, killing at least 19 persons. Scores were injured and heavy property damage resulted from the tail-end lash of a mild winter.

War-damaged buildings collapsed in Germany, killing 17 persons, 10 of them in Cologne. A man died in Rome when winds toppled the walls of a building. The roof of a Yorkshire, Eng., house was blown in, killing a woman.

The gales closed landing fields throughout western Germany and halted the Berlin airlift.

Former British cruiser Aurora changes sides in China.

Athletic Scholarship Offered To B.C. Man

VANCOUVER (CP)—Jerry Nestman, "scatback" star of the Vancouver Junior Blue Bombers football team of two years ago, has received a provisional athletic scholarship from McGill University, Montreal.

Johnny Nestman, Jerry's father, said today his son had received a letter from Vic Obeck, McGill coach, asking him to come east and attend McGill. In the letter, Obeck told Jerry it would cost him only $300 for his first year at McGill medical school.

The offer made to Nestman is believed to be similar to one made to Jim Mitchener, star of the 1948 Grey Cup champions, Calgary Stampeders.

Judge Refuses Bail For Carr Till Trial

OTTAWA (CP)—County Judge A. G. McDougall refused this afternoon to grant bail to Sam Carr, who was committed earlier to stand trial on a charge of conspiring to utter a forged passport.

Defence counsel Joseph Sedgwick said later he would probably apply for bail to a higher court.

Carr, a leading figure in the federal espionage inquiry, is tentatively scheduled to appear in May before the Spring Assizes.

Warship Known Here Steals Out From Nanking

NANKING (AP)—Nationalist China, thrashing about for a peace formula, today was deeply concerned with:

1. The apparent desertion of her biggest warship, the British-donated cruiser, now reported to be at a port.

2. A reported attempt to kidnap Acting President Li Tsung-jen, balked by wholesale arrests.

3. A newspaper report that the Communists are dropping their demand that "war criminals" be punished as a condition of peace.

4. Mounting pressure for the banishment of Premier Sun Fo.

The Chungking, formerly the British cruiser Aurora, disappeared from her anchorage at Nanking. She carried a complement of 450 men—mostly British-trained.

DECEIVED BY ORDERS

The best information was that she sailed on spurious orders. She was one of the navy ships not supposed to move without orders from Admiral Kwei Yung-ching, Chinese navy commander-in-chief.

Sources here said the Chungking had sailed from her Yankze anchorage with her men and was presently tied up at 'Cheng, Communist Shantung port.

News that the Chungking has deserted the Chinese Nationalists comes with interest to many Victorians. The 5,270-ton vessel, completed a couple of years before the Second World War, visited Esquimalt on one or more occasions in the course of cruises. She carried six-inch guns, was fitted with six torpedo tubes and had a speed of 35.25 knots.

Muddy Road Halts Love On The Farm

OKLAHOMA CITY (AP)—Love in the small farm community of Dale apparently is just a muddy road ahead.

State Senator Oliver C. Walker received this letter from Dale: "I am about to grow up to be an old maid out here on the farm, for even though my boy friend has a jeep, he is unable to get through the mud to my house."

"Twice lately my boy friend has been obliged to stand me up so perhaps you might use your influence in helping Dan Cupid along, for with better road conditions Prince Charming could always get here."

Rescue Three From Island Off Alaska

CORDOVA, Alaska (AP)—Four men eased a whaleboat through surf and ice floes six feet thick today and rescued three castaways who had spent seven days on wind-chilled Grass Island.

The three were Mr. and Mrs. Fred Howard and Robert Zentmire, marooned Feb. 22 when their power barge ran aground on the island in the Gulf of Alaska. Salvaging materials from the barge, they built a hut to escape the icy winds.

Denies Property Bought For Navy

OTTAWA (CP)—Defence Minister Claxton told Maj.-Gen. G. R. Pearkes, V.C. (P.C.-Naimo) in the Commons today that his department has made no purchase of property at Esquimalt, B.C., for the building of homes for naval ratings. He said he would inquire of Central Mortgage and Housing Corp.

4-Year-Old Boy Victim Of Double-Car Crash

James William Lazaruk, 1729 Oak Bay Avenue, one month short of being four years old, was crushed to death and two playmates narrowly escaped the same fate in an accident with an upside-down spinning car near the intersection of Oak Bay Avenue and Richmond Road Monday evening.

It was the second Victoria traffic fatality of 1949.

The boy was the only child of Mr. and Mrs. Nick Lazaruk. The father is a leading seaman at present on H.M.C.S. Crescent now at Shanghai, China, who was informed of the tragedy by wireless shortly after it had occurred.

Summoned by F. Beiers by telephone, a squad of city police led by Deputy Chief John Blackstock found that the little boy had been crushed against a telephone pole by a 1948 model English Hillman sedan driven by Harry E. White, about 60, 2377 Central Avenue.

James Lazaruk had been playing with his wagon east of the intersection nearly 100 feet from where the accident started. Kenneth Townie, aged 9, and his younger sister, Patricia, of the same address as the dead boy, were a few feet away from the telephone pole.

AFTER COLLISION

The police report stated that an automobile driven east on Oak Bay Avenue by White had been in collision with an auto driven south on Richmond and entering the intersection driven by Harry Oswald English, 2832 Dawdney Avenue, principal of the Victoria Normal School.

"After the impact the White car turned over and continued east on Oak Bay Avenue spinning around on its top, colliding with the little lad and apparently crushing him against the pole."

"The auto came to rest on the east side of the pole on the south side of the avenue, 97 feet from the point of impact," the report continued.

Constables James Strong and Brian Ferguson rushed the lad to Jubilee Hospital where Dr. G. J. MacKenzie, interne, pronounced him dead, probably due to head injuries.

The Lazaruk child's wagon and the White car were taken to the police station and are being held in the west yard.

The police report said that Dr. E. L. McNiven examined White and the passenger in his car, Robert H. Blades, 2367 Central Avenue, at the police station. They were unhurt.

WHEEL BROKEN OFF

The Normal School principal's car was only slightly damaged, the White car extensively. Among other damage one wheel was broken off.

Mr. English said he had stopped at the northerly stop sign at the intersection and was proceeding slowly south across the intersection. Passenger in his car was H. Gilliland, 840 Richmond Ave.

Sgt. Steve Dunnell supervised the taking of measurements at the scene.

The body was taken to McCall Bros' Funeral Parlors at the request of the mother, Colla Lazaruk, a Scottish Canadian. Leading Seaman Lazaruk is of Polish extraction. They came to Victoria in 1945.

The police have secured the names of several witnesses, but wish any other persons who saw the accident to get in touch with the station immediately.

This was the second fatal accident in a single week in Victoria. To date this year in the other municipalities and Provincial Police territory in the outlying districts there have been no accidents involving deaths.

David A. Williams, 20, 855 Fort Street, son of Mr. and Mrs. F. Williams of that address, died in hospital from injuries received when the motorcycle he was driving was in collision with a car at Douglas and Herald Streets.

Accident occurred last Wednesday evening and Williams died in hospital Friday afternoon at 1.04. John Turner, 22, 1834 Quadra Street, owner of the bike, a passenger on this occasion, is in Jubilee Hospital being treated for injuries.

Tax Position Of Farmers Protected In Wheat Payments

OTTAWA (CP)—Revenue Minister McCann told the Commons Monday the government will protect the tax position of prairie farmers in connection with the payments now being distributed for wheat delivered in the past.

Replying to questions asked previously, he said:

"As was done in former years, appropriate action will be taken to ensure that the farmer will not have to pay more tax by reason of including this payment as income in this year than he would have paid if that amount had been included in his income in the year in which he had delivered the wheat."

He promised to refer to his legal advisers a question from Cal Miller (P.C.-Portage la Prairie) about how the executor or administrators of estates will show the distribution of the payments in the various years in which they were made.

Plot In China To Kidnap Li Upset As Arrests Made

SHANGHAI (AP)—Shen Pao, Shanghai's second largest newspaper, reported today that a plot to kidnap Acting President Li Tsung-jen and overthrow the Chinese Nationalist government was averted by wholesale arrests.

The newspaper said the plot was a member of a "five-man action group" in charge of execution of the plot.

Men is the husband of Chin Shiu-ching, delegate from Chungking to China's National Assembly. She has been under house arrest by government police for two weeks.

Besides kidnapping the Acting President, the newspaper said, the plotters planned to seize a number of other officials, including Ten Chih, mayor of Nanking.

Gouzenko Gives Evidence Against Sam Carr At Trial

OTTAWA (CP)—Igor Gouzenko, guarded by seven or eight Mounties, testified today that Sam Carr had the cover names of "Sam" and "Frank" in a Russian espionage ring in Canada. He appeared in city court before Deputy Magistrate J. Sauve.

He was called as the first witness as the Crown launched a conspiracy charge against Carr, alleged ringleader of the Soviet espionage ring Gouzenko exposed.

Legion Officer Among Three Held For Questioning

PARIS (Reuter)—French police continued active today in their check-up on alleged Communist spies. Three more persons, it was learned, have been detained for questioning.

A government spokesman declared Monday night that "it is an extremely serious affair. Police operations are continuing."

Hundreds of military and civilian security police took part Monday in a round-the-clock investigation of persons suspected of "endangering the external security of the state" by divulging military secrets. This followed the detention of two active-list officers and the arrest on Saturday of three Communist journalists and an aircraft designer.

The evening newspaper France Soir reported today that a former high French officer, who is a commander of the Legion of Honor, had been under questioning by the police since Monday night.

Two other persons were released after questioning by the special branch of the police, the newspaper added.

New Pace In Cold War Set By Red Sympathizers

LONDON (AP)—Communist declarations in western Europe that an invading Soviet army would be welcomed and assisted set a new pace in the cold war today.

Communist party leaders in France, Italy, Germany and Britain in the last week have spoken along the same line, in marked reversal of the conciliatory tones of the recent so-called peace offensive.

The opinion that a master's voice was speaking and that the new course of Communist strategy indicates the introduction of a more vigorous policy was expressed in some quarters here.

British sources said obviously the various statements "were inspired by a central directive."

The latest Communist spokesman to voice threats is Harry Pollitt, general secretary of the British Communist Party. He was quoted by the Communist Daily Worker Monday night as declaring "British Communists would try to sabotage any 'imperialist aggressive war' against Russia. In event of such a war, British Communists would organize strikes and 'councils of action'."

Thorez First To Speak Out

The marching tune was called last Tuesday by Maurice Thorez, secretary-general of the French Communist Party. He suggested that if the French people, "in spite of their wish," should find themselves at war with Russia and the Soviet army "had to chase the enemy in onto our soil," the Communists would welcome the invaders.

On Saturday, Palmiro Togliatti, Italy's No. 1 Communist, became bolder. The Italian people, he said, would have the duty "to aid in the most efficient way" any Russian army which might be required to pursue an aggressor into Italy.

Monday, Pietro Nenni, pro-Communist Socialist leader in Italy, was quoted in press dispatches as telling a leftist crowd in Venice to refuse to fight for the present government in a war between Russia and the United States. Socialists and Communists, he said, should form together an "advance guard of the liberating armies."

Plane Carrying Doctors, Medicines To Hamlet Near Arctic Circle

WINNIPEG (CP)—A ski-equipped Dakota aircraft took off from Stevenson Field here at 8.40 a.m., C.S.T., today on the first leg of a 1,000-mile mercy flight to Chesterfield Inlet, N.W.T., to take doctors and medicines to victims of a mysterious malady sweeping the northland. The sickness already has claimed 11 lives.

The plane was scheduled to land at Churchill about 1 p.m. and push on to the inlet, weather permitting. Aboard the Dakota five doctors, headed by Dr. W. J. Wood of Winnipeg, regional superintendent of Dominion Indian health services.

The 350-mile hop north from Churchill to Chesterfield Inlet will take the doctors over the frozen western rim of Hudson Bay. At the inlet's outpost, with its total population of approximately 50 whites and Eskimos, the aircraft will skim to an icy landing 200 miles south of the Arctic Circle.

To Have Assistant

OTTAWA (CP)—Dr. G. S. H. Barton, 66, has been appointed special assistant to Agriculture Minister Gardiner.

Dr. Barton has been deputy minister of agriculture since 1932 and is succeeded in that post by James G. Taggart, now director-in-chief of agricultural services. The appointments were announced by Prime Minister St. Laurent.

In his new post Dr. Barton will specialize in the international phases of agricultural development.
